VOL. CIII., NO. 607 — VICTORIA, B. C., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1911 — TWENTY PAGES

WHAT THE ELECTORS WANT TO KNOW

[illegible] from the official journal of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers' International Union of America, published at Indianapolis, Ind., August 1911.

—from Fresno, Cal. Positively no work to be had. Bad luck to every one job. Pay no attention to advertisements in Western papers for either skilled or unskilled labor, as the town is flooded with idle workmen, and hundreds of them are hungry and dead broke with no sign of a job in sight. Per Fresno Labor Council.

Fresno, Cal., is not far from Victoria and will serve to give the trades mentioned an idea of conditions in California. Will the Hon. Wm. Templeman name a place in Canada with similiar conditions, and will the hon. gentleman please explain to the electors why he is making the fight of his life to bring about a trade agreement with a country that is daily sending out such reports to the various trades unions of the United States? When the Times, Mr. Templeman's paper, tells the workingmen that they are being insulted by the Conservative party we would ask what greater insult could be offered than to allow alien laborers to come into Canada in hundreds. Mr. Templeman said he thought not more than one hundred had come in. F. W. Speed, the immigration officer, said under oath several hundred. The word insult does not cover the offence. It is positively disgraceful—and the Hon. Wm. Templeman cannot and dare not deny the responsibility.

Tactics Exposed

From the Winnipeg Telegram, Friday evening, September 8, 1911:

FAKE SCHEME TO BOOST RECIPROCITY PACT

A Seattle Clerk's Little Lark Paraded as an Argument in Favor of the Agreement

There appeared in yesterday's evening edition of the Free Press, a reproduction of a photograph in one of the windows of the C. P. R. office in Seattle. The photograph, it is explained, was taken from the sidewalk in front of the window, and on it were the words: "Reciprocity will increase Canadian lands 100 per cent."

The name of Louis Williams, general agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway Lands, was used in connection with this production. It appears that the photograph referred to was first used by the Calgary Albertan, the Liberal organ in southern Alberta. It has been passed on to other Liberal papers in the west with the object of conveying the impression that the C. P. R. agent in Seattle believed an increase of farm values in Canada would follow the ratification of the reciprocity agreement.

The newspapers publishing this photograph have discreetly suppressed the letter, which Mr. Williams, the C. P. R. agent in Seattle addressed to the Calgary Albertan as soon as the matter was brought to his attention. Here is the letter:

Editor Morning Albertan, Calgary, Alta.

Dear sir,—Your reproduction of sign in C. P. R. land office in Seattle is misleading in the extreme. This sign was not authorised by the C. P. R., nor by me, nor anyone in authority in the office, but was put up by a clerk during my absence and immediately removed on my return. As a large land-holder and grain-grower in Alberta, I believe Canada is better without reciprocity, and thus freer untrammelled by foreign trickery and wish as a subscriber to your paper that you be fair and give this the same publicity you gave the reproduction and the misleading statements.

Yours for justice,
LOUIS WILLIAMS.

Seattle, Sept. 2, 1911.

The Free Press, like its Calgary contemporary, refrained from printing Mr. Williams' letter.

The Victoria Times ran the same photograph on the evening of Sept. 6. Will the Times oblige its readers with a reproduction of the same and publish the C. P. R. official representative's explanatory letter.

Misrepresentation

Editor of the Colonist,
Victoria.

Sir:—In its "Pictorial Lesson for the Victoria Consumer" reproduced in the Times this evening, that paper quotes as Victoria prices: Apples at 2 lbs. for 25 cents, grapes at 15 cents a pound, fresh eggs at 50 cents a dozen, potatoes at $1.35 a sack, bread flour at $1.50 a sack, pears at 2 lbs. for 25 cents and peaches at 15 cents a pound.

We offered for sale yesterday and offer for sale today these commodities as follows:

Apples 5 lbs. for 25 cents, grapes 5-lb. basket for 25 cents, Seattle fresh eggs 40 cents a dozen, potatoes $1.35 a sack, bread flour $1.65 a sack, pears 40-lb. box for $1.50 and peaches 20-lb. box for $1.

This misrepresentation by the Times of the prices charged by Victoria grocers we consider very unfair of Victoria and to ourselves. It tends to create a false impression elsewhere of conditions here. To bolster up a political argument by blackening one's own town and misrepresenting conditions here, is poor policy in our opinion.

Yours truly,
COPAS & YOUNG.

Messrs. Copas & Young should not feel distressed over the Pictorial Lesson depicted in last night's Times. Ever since the campaign began all sorts of peculiar statements have been published by the Hon. Wm. Templeman's journal that are not in keeping with the actual state of affairs in the city of Victoria. It is very wrong of a newspaper to hit its own town and it is perfectly right that our merchants should resent wrong prices being quoted for political purposes, but do the merchants think for one moment that they alone are aware that unreliable prices are being printed in every reciprocity organ in the Dominion?

The consumer thoroughly understands the situation and many of our wideawake citizens have investigated for themselves and confirm our contention that one can live as cheaply in Victoria as in Seattle. This we will prove before the 21st of September in a manner that will set at rest the many misleading reports in circulation regarding the cost of living.

We shall feel grateful to the Hon. Wm. Templeman if he will explain how the consumer is to have cheaper food and the grower more for his product.

The Songhees Reserve

Mr. Templeman evades the issues relating to the reversionary interest in the new Songhees reserve. He says the right of the province is one for the courts to decide.

He is quite wrong. The Dominion authorities stipulated before assenting to the transfer of the old reserve to the province that the provincial government should specifically surrender its claim to the reversionary interest in the new reserve.

That is, it stipulated that the province should surrender a right which he himself says is for the courts to determine.

Thus, Mr. Templeman has once more exhibited ignorance of something done by the government of which he is a member, something that one day may mean the loss of a very large sum of money to the province.

Mr. Templeman has discovered that there was no reversionary right in the old reserve. This is all very well to say now, but that is not what he used to say when he was hampering the negotiations of the province with the Indians through his newspaper.

But if the Dominion had no reversionary right in the old reserve, why should it claim any such right in the new one? Perhaps Mr. Templeman will kindly answer that question.

The new reserve cost this province more than two hundred thousand dollars, and yet the Dominion government has insisted that the province shall have no right to it after the Indians have ceased to occupy it.

In other words, here is a property, which when the Indians are done with it will be worth millions of dollars, and the Dominion insists upon owning it, although it never paid a dollar for it, or had anything whatever to do with acquiring it.

The Dominion had, Mr. Templeman tells us, no reversionary interest in the old reserve; it demanded a reversionary interest in the new one as the price of its assent to the removal of the Indians.

This demand was an absolute holdup.

No matter what the courts may decide the reversionary interest in the new reserve will belong to the Dominion, because the Dominion government has so stipulated.

Two Pictures.

A despatch from Detroit, Mich., announces that an American railway company has paid off 8 0 0 0 employees through lack of business, all the railways of the United States being similiarly affected on account of depressing conditions existing throughout the States.

Which picture do you prefer, Mr. Wage-Earner?

Do you want reciprocity in American hard times?

A despatch from Winnipeg, Manitoba, announces that the C. P. R. has granted an increase in wages averaging 8 per cent, and affecting some 5000 employees, as the result of prosperous business on its system throughout Canada.

Two Quotations and a Question.

"We look forward to the day when this whole North American continent will be One Great Nation as it should be."—New York Journal.

"This Special Congress that Canada and the United States in business matters will be known as the Congress that brought about a closer union in political matters."—Hearst Journal.

If Canada gives up her commercial independence at this rate, how long will it be before we have Canada's government at Washington, instead of Ottawa?

"I regard this Reciprocity treaty," says Mr. Clifford Sifton, "as commercially of no advantage, and from a national standpoint, disastrous in the extreme. I believe that it will, if carried into effect, have the most prejudical effect upon our progress towards a strong independent, influential position in the British Empire, a position towards which we have lately been advancing with wonderful rapidity. The principle involved is much more important than the continuance in power, or even the existence, of any party. It is a question which goes to the root of our national life and development. Holding this opinion, it is obvious that the principle of party loyalty could not be evoked to guide my actions, and it became my plain duty to act upon my convictions and offer the strongest possible resistance to the ratifying of the treaty."

Resist to the Utmost

"I therefore need scarcely state my firm belief, that the prosperity of Canada depends upon its permanent connection with the Mother Country, and that I shall resist to the utmost any attempt (from whatever quarter it may come), which may tend to weaken that union."

ANDREW GRAY
PROPRIETOR

PEMBROKE ST., BETWEEN GOVERNMENT AND STORE STS.

VICTORIA, B. C. Sept 13, 1911 19

To The Editor of The Colonist:

Sir--I have been a Liberal and I voted for Mr. Templeman at the last election, but this time I shall support the Conservative candidate, as I consider the reciprocity pact a blow at Canadian nationality. I must stand by the British flag--that is how I feel about it.

I am an Old Countryman, and for that reason I feel that my duty is clear on this occasion--to stand by British institutions. If we are to be drawn into any closer relations with the United States, I should prefer to go there and live rather than in Canada, and have done with it. Those are, shortly, my views on the matter.

But I may add that in my opinion reciprocity would prove a serious blow to our industries. If we have reciprocity the Americans will exploit our country for our raw material, manufacture it in the large factories in the United States and send the finished article to Canada at prices which they would put upon it.

ELECTORS HEAR MR. G. H. BARNARD

Successful Campaign Meeting in Ward Three District—Reciprocity and Alien Labor Act Under Discussion

The voters of North Ward and Spring Ridge, Ward 3, assembled at the George Jay school last night. Mr. J. L. Beckwith occupied the chair and the candidate, Mr. G. H. Barnard, and Messrs. F. Andrews of the High school staff and H. C. Hannington delivered speeches. The hall was decorated with flags, and many banners bearing various mottoes were on the walls. One read: "You cannot have Eastern prices and Western wages." Another read: "We stand for Imperial Unity."

Mr. Beckwith, after congratulating the people of the ward on the splendid hall which accommodated the audience that would have taxed the Oddfellows' hall, where such gatherings were formerly held, dealt with the question of reciprocity, the issue on which so many Liberals had placed country before party, and were unable to support Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government on this occasion as the proposed agreement was not in the best interests of the country, and he was astonished to see how these men who placed country above all were abused in the Liberal press. He referred to the diametrically opposed statements made by supporters of the pact, who said in the cities that it would decrease the cost of living while at the same time they told farmers, they would get larger prices. How could these statements be reconciled? He referred to the manner in which the Liberals had carried on the policy of protection inaugurated by Sir John A. Macdonald and to the dumping clause which Mr. Fielding had inserted to give further protection, and to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's assurances at Simcoe to the manufacturers that the pact would not affect manufactured articles imported into Canada. He could not see how Canada could benefit by reciprocity, and every loyal Britisher should in this crisis stand by the country. He recalled the history of all arrangements with the United States in all of which the United States saw that it got the long end, in sealing matters, the Klondike rush and the manner of the delimitation of the little strip of territory at Skagway to the detriment of Canada, giving Uncle Sam to make dollars

WOULD STIFLE LOCAL INDUSTRIES

To the Editor:

Sir,—Our firm, James Leigh & Sons, has for some time been contemplating the erection of a large addition to our mill, as our business has grown so rapidly that our present plant is inadequate to meet all demands, but in view of the reciprocity proposals we have deemed it advisable to delay going on With the work. We feel that with reciprocity there may come such changes in the tariff as would work disastrously to our business here—and we are therefore waiting to see what the people of Canada will do on Thursday of next week.

I may explain that one of the reasons why the local mills find it impossible to manufacture sashes and doors in competition with the mills on Puget Sound is that we pay better wages here. On the other side there are many foreigners employed and they also make a practice of employing boys to a greater extent than do the mills on this side.

I shall certainly vote against reciprocity.

S. M. LEIGH.

The local Roll of Honor is lengthening. The list of the prominent electors in Victoria who have heretofore been identified with the Liberal party but who will on Thursday next place the country before party and vote against the reciprocity pact and for Mr. G. H. Barnard, the Conservative candidate, is daily being enlarged—and the end is not yet.

On this page is reproduced in facsimile a letter received by the editor of the Colonist yesterday from Mr. Andrew Gray. It is hardly necessary to say who Mr. Gray is, for a residence in this city for over a quarter of a century has won for him a prominent place amongst the foremost business men of the city. But it may be added for the benefit of the large number of electors who may have come to the city in recent years that Mr. Gray is proprietor of the Marine Iron works, on Pembroke street, one of the pioneer industrial establishments of the city.

It is a significant fact that Mr. Gray, a large employer of labor expresses a fear that under reciprocity local industries would suffer in competition with the United States. This should have considerable weight with the wage earners of the city, for Mr. Gray is in a position to judge of the matters of which he speaks in his letter.

It only remains to be said that Mr. Gray is a man of strict integrity and unblemished reputation, who would not lend his aid to any political party in the heat of campaign, unless he felt deeply on the subject of what is best in the interests of the country. He said yesterday in handing the letter to the Colonist: "I never take a part in election campaigns publicly, but I feel that I should now come forward with this letter—and I submit the views contained therein for what they are worth."

That local industries might be dealt a severe blow should the reciprocity pact be endorsed by the Canadian electorate is the opinion of a member of one of the great sawmilling concerns of Victoria—Mr. Sidney M. Leigh, of the firm of James Leigh & Sons, whose works are at Point Ellice.

It has been known for some time that Messrs. Leigh & Sons had been contemplating large additions to their mill, but during the past few days the disquieting rumor got abroad that the proposed enterprise, which would involve the expenditure of a large sum of money and mean the employment of a larger staff, would be abandoned.

Yesterday a Colonist reporter was detailed to investigate the matter and he interviewed Mr. Leigh, who corroborated the rumors of an abandonment, for the present of the intention to enlarge the mill, and in explanation thereof he addressed to the Colonist the letter which is printed above and which is self-explanatory.

FOWLER'S FLIGHT

Aviator Will Secure New Machine and Endeavor to Complete Journey from Pacific to Atlantic

ALTA, Cal., Sept. 13.—Aviator Robert G. Fowler, whose aeroplane was badly wrecked here yesterday morning shortly after the resumption of his flight from Colfax, is undismayed at the abrupt manner in which his aerial journey from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic coast was cut short, and is busily engaged with a force of mechanics in rebuilding his damaged machine.

The arrival here of a special baggage car from Reno with a number of spare parts for the aeroplane has made it possible for Fowler to make considerable headway in assembling the machine. The entire outfit will be moved to Colfax in the morning, where better facilities are a hand. Fowler has accepted an invitation of the Colfax Gun Club to become their guest during his stay of a few days. At any rate the repairs on the machine have been made, it is expected that Fowler will be able to resume his journey from Colfax on Saturday morning. C. P. Grundy, Fowler's manager, arrived here last night from Reno, and after viewing the situation, expressed hope that the aviator would be able to continue his interrupted flight late this week.

That Fowler is determined to continue his flight to New York was emphasized today, when it was learned that a complete biplane, with the exception of the engine, had been shipped to his camp here from Ogden, Utah, where it had been held in reserve for emergency.

The machine will arrive here tomorrow morning, and it is found that the wrecked aeroplane is likely to cause further delay, the new machine will be used, and the old one forwarded at later and forwarded to Ogden. Fowler said that the [illegible]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Full of regret because his sojourn in Washington of less than 24 hours would not permit visits to half the places which he desired to see, the Chinese Rear Admiral Ching Ping Kwang, left today for Beverly, Mass., where he will be received by President Taft tomorrow. Leaving Beverly tomorrow, Admiral Ching will call on Mayor Gaynor of New York Friday, and pay a visit to Governor's Island on Saturday. Ultimately he will go to England to take home a training ship now under construction at an English shipyard.

NO CONFIDENCE IN GOVERNMENT

Imperial Veterans of Victoria Pass Resolution Which Shows Their Attitude Towards Federal Authorities

At a representative meeting of No. 4 Company, Imperial Veteran Service of Canada, held in the city hall last evening, the following resolution was carried unanimously:

"Whereas the Federal government has session after session evaded and shuffled the question of the Fenian Raid Veteran claims,

"And whereas they have absolutely refused to take the matter up for discussion in the House of Commons, thereby refusing to carry out the promise made by the prime minister, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, to a deputation made from this company during his late visit to this city.

"Therefore, be it resolved that the Imperial Veterans of No. 24 Company wish to place themselves on record that they have no confidence in the said government to deal fairly with this important question."

A considerable quantity of routine business was also transacted at last evening's session.

OFFERS WAGER AGAINST PARTY

Mr. Carruthers, Prominent Liberal of Montreal, Confident that Reciprocity will be Rejected by Canada

MORE DEFECTIONS ARE REPORTED

Ministers Fielding, Paterson and Graham Slated for Defeat—All Provinces Against Government's Policy

MONTREAL, Sept. 13—"They got the wrong end of the stick," laughingly said James Carruthers today in discussing the story published here by the Liberal organ to the effect that while Mr. Carruthers opposed reciprocity, he had placed $1500 that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would be returned to power. "All wrong," said Mr. Carruthers, who added: "Now here is what I will wager, $500 that Laurier will not have 30 of a majority, $500 that he will not have 20 of a majority, and $500 that he will be beaten. The loser's money to be donated to three Montreal hospitals."

Mr. Carruthers, who is as well known in the west as in Montreal, is a sturdy opponent of reciprocity. He was well known for his advocacy of the Liberal principles, but he now says: "This is the time when men should get away from the party and say 'yes' or 'no.' This question is too big to be settled along party lines. For one, I am strongly against reciprocity."

At the last election Mr. Carruthers won a handsome wager on the Liberal victory from the late Robert Meighen, the latter contributing a goodly sum to local charities as the result of the Liberal return.

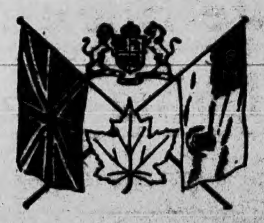

In Every Province

The great campaign is nearly over and the flowing tide is overwhelmingly with the Conservative party. It is clear to every candid observer that reciprocity will be beaten in almost every province from British Columbia to Prince Edward Island. In Nova Scotia it may be 9 for and 9 against, in other words, an even break, but in New Brunswick, the home of Hon. Wm. Pugsley, the majority will be against reciprocity. The great province of Quebec will give in all probability, a majority against reciprocity. The most Liberals hope for now is an even break. In Ontario it will be a veritable avalanche in favor of Borden and the Conservative party.

As the Americans say, "it's all over but the shouting." Ministers Fielding and Paterson are both slated for defeat. Hon. Mr. Graham, minister of railways, is also certain to lose his seat.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be a candidate in three different constituencies and will be elected in two of them; in the third he is facing defeat. In fact, a veritable revolution has taken place in the minds of the people of Canada with regard to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's last three years of rule. The people of Quebec and Ontario and in-

REBELS BESIEGE CHINESE CITY

Advices Received at Peking Indicate that Cheng Tu, Capital of Szechuen Province, is Beleaguered.

MISSIONARIES SAID TO BE THERE STILL

Garrison Thought to be Able to Resist Attacks of Rebels—American War Vessels Are at Saikwan

PEKING, Sept. 13.—Latest advices received by the Chinese foreign board and the foreign legations indicate that Cheng Tu, capital of Szechuen province, is under siege, that most, if not all the missionaries are inside the walls, and that the city is garrisoned by 1,800 troops, which have had several engagements with the besieging forces.

A despatch from the prefect of Tsu Chau, dated September 12, says that the troops were firing upon the rebels from the Cheng Tu walls, and that the besiegers had lost many men. The belief is held there that the garrison is capable of resisting the attacks of any number of organized rebels from the outside. Tsu Chau is 75 miles from Cheng Tu.

The Canadian Methodist compound within the city has opened spaces around its own walls. It is believed that the foreigners have taken refuge within this compound, which is considered the strongest and the most easily defended. Peking missionaries who have been in former riots in Cheng Tu say that whatever Chinese troops were dispatched to guard the mission would be stationed outside the compound and would not be permited to get within the gates.

Whether the foreigners and natives inside the walls are prepared to endure a siege is not known. The question of supplies is all-important, and it is probable, from past experiences, that the missionaries have taken precautions against such a contingency. The missionaries however, have no weapons unless they have been supplied by the viceroy. Every effort is being made to communicate with Cheng Tu, but so far there has been no movement to relieve the city.

Foreigners here seem confident of the ability of the viceroy to suppress the rising. The southern section of Szechuen continues tranquil, although the natives sympathize with the opponents of railway construction. All gatherings in Peking in sympathy with the revolutionary movement in Szechuen have been dispersed by the police.

A despatch from Kia Ting Fu, south of Cheng Tu, says that foreign missionaries stationed there have left for Yangtze. These include three men and their wives and a woman doctor. The foreign gunboats have been unable to proceed above Sui Fu.

War Vessels in River

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The American squadron, headed by the cruiser New Orleans, which has been making its way up the Yangtse river from Shanghai to Nanking, has reached Saikwan, the port of Nankin, and Admiral Murdock has taken command of the expedition, transferring his flag for that purpose from the Saratoga to the New Orleans. While he originally intended that these deep craft vessels should stop at Nanking, the admiral has now changed his plan and will proceed with his squadron about 250 miles further up the river from Hankow, which marks the limit of deep water navigation.

This movement is made possible by the fact that the Yangtse is greatly swollen by a flood, which is the worst since 1839.

American citizens of Szechuen province are believed to be in present danger.

Revolt Spreading.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—A Shanghai dispatch to a London news bureau says it is reported that the entire province of Szechuen is in revolt. The rebels are expected to declare their independence.

Situation Serious.

HANKOW, Sept. 13.—The native press publishes a report that viceroy's Yamen at Cheng Tu has been destroyed and many rioters have been killed. It is reported also that the foreigners have gone to Chung King under escort.

The situation is considered grave.

The viceroy has about 2,000 troops at Cheng Tu and 8,000 altogether in the province. Reinforcements cannot reach Cheng Tu in less than a month.

Cholera in Macedonia

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 13.—A despatch to the Novoe Vremya from Constantinople, describing the horrors of the cholera epidemic in Macedonia, says the soldiers are crowded in locked cars when ill and left without water or medical aid. On the Mitrovitz Auskup railroad, living and dead victims of the cholera have been thrown from car windows by their comrades.

deed all the eastern provinces have come to the conclusion that reciprocity was adopted by Mr. Fielding and Sir Wilfrid Laurier for the sole purpose of covering up the blunders and mistakes of the last 15 years.

Today Horace Joseph announced that he had severed his party ties and joined with the Conservatives in the battle. Mr. Joseph will cast his first Conservative vote. He was a former secretary of the Montreal Reform club.

Another striking incident of the local campaign was the meeting of the Conservatives organized to support the candidature of E. W. Villeneuve, in Maisonneuve. It was a big meeting too and decidedly enthusiastic. Villeneuve opposes Verville, who, while the labor candidate, has the official sanction of the Liberal organization. One more sign of the times is the reception of Mr. Bourassa in Vercheres last evening. Vercheres has been a Liberal constituency for 40 years and is a rare hotbed of Laurierism.

Against Borden and Navy

La Presse, the organ of the Laurier government, which is conducting the campaign, cries in heavy black type: "Every vote given in favor of the opposition candidates is a vote for Borden and consequently against Laurier."

"Every vote given for Borden is a vote given in favor of an imperial navy with participation in the wars of the empire instead of a navy essentially Canadian."

"French candidates, you have a single duty before you, dictated by patriotism and your interests and that is to vote for the candidate who is in favor of Canadian autonomy, reciprocity and French-Canadian prestige."

That the minister of finance is really in danger of losing his constituency of Queen's and Shelbourne was the important news which reached the city today from reliable sources, and the rather discouraging attitude of the Liberals when the matter was spoken of in their presence leads to the belief that the minister of finance will follow his colleague, the minister of customs, to the political limbo.

Hon. Charles Cahan, K.C., who once represented the Shelbourne section of the county in the local legislature, during the disastrous annexation repeal regime of W. S. Fielding, was asked later what he thought of the startling news from Shelbourne and Queen's.

"I firmly believe," he replied, "that Mr. Fielding will be defeated, and I will tell you why. I receive information from that province which I consider is quite reliable, and a letter which came to hand this morning leaves little doubt in my mind that Mr. Fielding is about at the end of his tether. Yes, I look for the defeat of the finance minister a week from Thursday.

Mr. Bourassa Sues for Libel

Henri Bourassa today entered an action for $10,000 damages against Mr. L. A. Rivet, the Liberal candidate in Hochelaga, for alleged defamatory libel. The suit is a result of certain statements said to have been made by Mr. Rivet in the course of a campaign speech to the effect that Mr. Bourassa was being subsidized to the extent of $200,000 by the Conservatives and Orangemen of Ontario, this sum being supposedly devoted to the interests of "Le Devoir," the official organ of the French Nationalists. These statements were given publicly in the press, and so far Mr. Rivet has published no retraction.

Stanstead Contest

C. R. Brunot this morning announced that he had definitely withdrawn as the Liberal candidate in Stanstead county. This means that a three-cornered fight is avoided. Mr. C. A. Lovell, the retiring member, has been nominated by the Liberals and Mr. C. A. Paige by the opposition.

MONTMAGNY, Que., Sept. 13.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier came here today to support the candidature of Hon. Dr. Beland, who is running in the two divisions of Montmagny and Beauce. A specially vigorous Liberal campaign is being waged here, as the Conservative candidate, D. O. L'Esperance, has been nursing the constituency for the past three years, and Armand Lavergne, Henri Bourassa's right hand man, is the representative of the division in the provincial house. The feature event of the day was the first display of open opposition to the premier's marine policy to occur at one of his Quebec meetings. Not only was there a crowd of young men at the corner on the route of the premier's procession to the meeting place who cried "a bas La Marine" as he went past, but the Nationalists also made their presence felt, hanging a huge streamer, bearing the same words, across one of the poles where Sir Wilfrid could not help but see it on his way to the gathering.

Rumor had also got abroad that Messrs. Armand Lavergne and D. O. L'Esperance were to be permitted to appear on the platform with the Liberal speakers, and sections of the crowd showed audible disappointment when they found that the joint debate was not to take place.

Sir Wilfrid spent the greater part of his address in a savage thrust at his opponents. Macdonald, Chapleau and other members of the great Conservative party, he said, had advocated Reciprocity. "I say great Conservative party, and I salute them," he repeated, raising his hat to their memory, then quickly replacing it, he said, "but the present Conservative leaders, what are they? Only pygmies."

Mr. Borden in Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, Sept. 13.—R. L. Borden addressed two meetings in Dartmouth tonight. One was proposed for the largest hall in the town, but that was filled before the hour of the meeting, and an overflow meeting took place in another hall which was also fully taxed, and he divided his time between both. Tomorrow Mr. Borden will speak twice in Shelburne-Queen's.

Mr. Clements' Success.

PRINCE RUPERT, Sept. 13.—Mr. Clements is making a splendid showing in the north, and is now in Aldermere after a most enthusiastic reception up the Skeena. At Hazelton, according to reports received of the meeting there he is going to do better than the most sanguine expectations.

In spite of the fact that the Liberals are putting extra forces to work on the lighthouse on Graham island and on the government work here, Mr. Ross is having a difficult time to reach anything like the vote he expects. He has adopted a new plan of addressing meetings for the ladies only in the afternoon and challenging Mr. Clements to meet him when he knows the latter is in Hazelton. According to all indications Mr. Clements will carry the constituency.

ANSWER SENT OFF TO BERLIN

Another Stage Reached in Franco-German Negotiations Over Morocco—Approval by President Fallieries

PARIS, Sept. 13.—After President Fallieres had given his formal sanction to the French reply to Germany's counter proposals in the Moroccan negotiations the foreign minister, M. De Salves, completed the transcription of the document and it was despatched for Berlin by special courier at 10 o'clock tonight.

Before the document was finally sent off, M. De Selves had an interview with the British and Russian ambassadors.

According to information from a reliable source, the reply is practically a revised and corrected version of the proposed Franco German treaty relative to Morocco, which was submitted to the German foreign minister on Sept. 4.

The German government reported a duplicate of this treaty to M. Cambon, the French ambassador, revised according to the requirements of Germany—that is to say, including a number of suppressions and additions. It is these that the French republic revised, either reincorporating the articles suppressed by the imperial government or amending or deleting the articles inserted by that government. The French reply accepts certain German demands which do not involve the question of principle.

As to the reasons which have inspired the French government in its revision of Germany's amendments, they form the subject of a special memoranda carried by the same courier. This will furnish M. Cambon with the elements for any further explanations Germany may request.

MAINE'S VOTE IS VERY CLOSE

Result of Special Election on Repeal of Constitutional Prohibition Amendment Remains in Doubt

PORTLAND, Maine., Sept. 13.—So close was the vote in Monday's special election on the question of repeal of the constitutional prohibition amendment that even tonight when most of the first unofficial returns had been revised by mail reports from town clerks, the result still is in doubt.

The secretary of state's reports tonight show an apparent majority of 155 for repeal. An error discovered in the report given officially by the clerk of the town of Limestone contributed largely to the uncertainty as to the outcome of the election. It was discovered that in reporting the vote in the town, the clerk returned to the Associated Press over his signature: "For repeal 12; against 155." To the secretary of state he reported just the reverse: for repeal 155, against 12.

Figures furnished by Secretary of State Davis from Augusta tonight, as compiled from mail returns from all but 13 cities and towns in the state, and with the 13 supplied from press returns, show an apparent majority for repeal of 155 votes. Of the 13 towns supplied by press returns, four were received by mail from the clerks and nine are the early figures, which it has not since been possible to verify. The figures of the total vote as furnished from the office of the secretary of state, include 13 towns supplied to Mr. Davis from press returns are: For repeal 60,[illegible]; against repeal 60,[illegible].

Fifty Years Ago Today

(From The Colonist of September 14, 1861.)

From a reliable source, we learn that a movement is on foot among the miners at Cariboo to explore the trail from Fort Alexandria to the coast during this fall and winter in order to test its practicability for the passage of pack animals. One business firm at Cariboo offers $300 towards the object, and there is very little doubt from the knowledge we have of the energy of the inhabitants of that section, but the exploration will be prosecuted with vigor as soon as a sum sufficient to defray the expenses has been subscribed.

The work on the new road to Esquimalt is being pushed forward rapidly, and has been completed to Father De Herbomez's residence.

RALLY TONIGHT AT VICTORIA WEST

Mr. G. H. Barnard and Others Speakers Will This Evening Address a Meeting at Semple's Hall

There will be a rally of the electors of Victoria West district this evening at Semple's hall, when a meeting will be held in the interests of the Conservative candidate, Mr. G. H. Barnard. Alderman G. A. Okell will take the chair and the proceedings will commence at 8 o'clock.

Speeches will be delivered by the candidate, Mr. Barnard, Mr. D. H. MacDowall, ex-M.P., Mr. John Dean, J.P., Mr. H. W. R. Moore and others. Workingmen are especially invited to attend the meeting as matters affecting their interests will be discussed by Mr. Barnard, who will deal exhaustively with the question of the recent infractions of the Alien Labor Act and the responsibility of Mr. Templeman as a member of the Laurier government which authorized a relaxing of the immigration laws of the country, permitting an influx of railway and other laborers from the other side of the line.

Today at noon, Mr. A. M. Bannerman, returning officer for the election, will at the police court rooms promptly at noon make a formal announcement of the candidates placed in nomination. Mr. Barnard's nomination papers have been very largely signed, but any person who would like to have his name included in the list and who may have been overlooked can have the matter attended to by calling at Conservative headquarters, Broad street hall, any time this morning before 11 o'clock.

Last evening the Socialists of the city held a meeting in Labor hall in the interests of their candidate, Mr. Gordon Brown. There was a large attendance of the supporters of the party in this city.

and out always to get the best of the bargain.

Violated Act.

Mr. G. H. Barnard, who was received with loud applause, spoke of the relaxation of the Immigration act for the purpose of allowing the Alien Labor act to be violated, following a passing reference to the manner in which the Liberal government had forced the province of British Columbia to abandon the reversionary rights held by the province in the new Indian reserve. Mr. Templeman, the speaker said, had claimed at his nominating convention that he was entitled to as much credit as anyone in British Columbia for settlement of the Songhees reserve question. (Laughter). If Mr. Templeman's opinion as to the result of the election was as good as his opinion of the credit he was entitled to, Mr. Barnard felt that he would have little difficulty on Sept. 21st in defeating him.

"Just think of the power Mr. Templeman had as a cabinet minister to settle this matter of the Indian reserve," said Mr. Barnard; "then think of the position of Premier McBride. Mr. Templeman was a minister of a government with annual revenue of $125,000,000, a government who would not stand behind him to make an expenditure and trust to being recouped from the sale of the lands. Mr. McBride, whose local government had a revenue of $7,000,000, had faith in Victoria to pay the Indians a good price and trust to getting enough money by the sales to repay the government. Who deserved credit and who deserved censure? If Mr. Templeman had taken that matter in hand as a man of ability and determination, it would never have been left to Mr. McBride to settle. It would have been settled years ago."

Mr. Barnard then referred to the violation of the Alien Labor act. He said the act read that anyone was guilty of an infraction who assisted or encouraged as well as one who brought laborers into Canada under contract. In 1910 and 1911 the superintendent of immigration at Ottawa, sent a circular letter to the immigration officers, instructing them to allow free entrance into Canada to workmen from the United States who were assured of employment provided they showed documentary evidence that they had been engaged for specific work. This was brough to the attention of Mr. Templeman, and he had stated two things. First, that there was no desire to infringe on the alien labor act, and, second, that he did not know anything about it. He had said the alien labor act was as good today as it ever was. This statement was misleading, and as such, was false.

Those Instructions.

The instructions to the immigration officials were to allow alien laborers who came to work on railway construction to enter provided they could show they had employment. Where was the alien laborer to get assured employment, and how else could he show the immigration official who met him when the steamer landed at the dock unless it meant that a contract had been entered into with him before he left Seattle, as was disclosed in the courts at Victoria? How else could the documentary evidence called for under the instructions sent to the immigration officials to relax the regulations be secured? Is it common sense, or in keeping with common honesty, for Mr. Templeman to say that when the immigration regulations were relaxed it was not intended to affect the alien labor act? Mr. Templeman stated that the G. T. P., C. P. R. and C. N. R. went to the government and represented that they were short of labor to build their lines and on the strength of this Mr. Oliver, minister of the interior, had relaxed the immigration laws to let the laborers come in. Was anyone to think that the railroads would not then send agents into the United States to engage laborers? Mr. Templeman had neither been fair or honest to the laboring men of Victoria. The matter had been discussed at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council and a resolution passed which had been forwarded to Mr. Templeman. Then he had turned around and said he agreed that this was wrong, and he said he did not know about it. What kind of a cabinet minister was it that would not know anything about any such matter as this? If Mr. Templeman did not know about the relaxation of the immigration laws, what position did he occupy in the Laurier government? He either knew and didn't care, or if he did know he didn't seem to count for much in the Laurier government.

Mr. Barnard then went on to deal with the reciprocity question. Cheap food and cheap wages were associated, he said, and one had not to go to Oriental countries to show this. He referred to conditions in Britain under the free trade policy. Living was cheaper, but pay was low. No workingman could get the good pay and good life he had in B. C.

A voice: That's why most of us left to come here.

Mr. Barnard went on to read an extract from speech by Mr. Lloyd George, who could scarcely be called unfair to the Liberal government insofar as he was interested, in connection with the laying of a cornerstone at Keith. Mr. Lloyd George said: "There are multitudes who notwithstanding grinding toil do not earn enough to keep body and soul together." Living was cheaper in the maritime provinces than here, but wages were correspondingly low. Skilled tradesmen did not get within 40 per cent. of what they got here.

No Cent Belt Wanted.

The Liberals were grossly exaggerating this cry of cheap food, drawing a red herring across the trail to take the minds of the electors from the general effect of the reciprocity agreement. He told of the exaggerations made and said that in some comparative tables published by the Liberal press considerable was made of comparisons of the price of oranges and lemons in Seattle and on this side. It was said they were higher because of the duty. As a matter of fact there was no duty on either oranges or lemons. He thought the people of Victoria would rather go on as they were than make this a cheap country. He did not think they wanted the cent belt to include this city. (Applause.) People here preferred to have more money, to spend it freely or save it as they willed, to live comfortably as they had done, and he hoped they would continue to do.

The opposition said the Conservatives did not seek to discuss this matter from an economic standpoint, but engaged in flag-waving. He was not ashamed to wave the flag. This was a practical age it was true, but sentiment was not a bad thing. Those who had the right sort of sentiment were usually pretty decent citizens. The province of British Columbia was probably richest in resources of all the provinces, and the people who lived here would desire that these resources should be worked up and manufactured on this side of the line to be sent as manufactured goods to the markets of the world. This reciprocity pact was all against that proposition. Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, in his recent writings said $200,000,000 of American money was invested in Canada and he deplored the fact that much of this was spent to pay wages to Canadian workers, and he said it was better to have the factories and manufacturies on the American side. This was a good policy for an American, but where did we of Canada come in?

President Taft.

Mr Barnard went on to refer to the pulp industry, and told of an article by President Taft in Leslie's Weekly, in which the president said he wanted to get the pulpwood from Canada to have it manufactured into paper on the American side. He said the supply in the United States was exhausted and the idea of the reciprocity pact was to force the provincial governments to remove their export duty on pulpwood to allow of it being manufactured on the United States side. Apart from this feature of [illegible] the United States was after the raw materials of Canada. He had read speeches in which prominent [illegible] had said there would not be a [illegible] of a ham made on the Canadian side, and that all the cattle of the prairies would be sent across the line to Armours, Swifts and other packers, if this reciprocity pact passed. This was not a policy to build up business for Canada. It was far better for Canadian manufacturies to work up their own raw materials and send them to the world's marts and to build up Canada as a nation existing side by side with other nations. The United States was fairly prosperous, and had been built up by protection. Canada was now much in the same position as the United States was many years ago. Why should we throw down the barrier? When Canada was a struggling country there was no glad hand. It was not until now the United States had practically exhausted the national resources and this reciprocity pact was brought forward to seek new fields to plunder that the United States extended open arms to Canada.

A good deal of love of country existed among the men with whom he had spoken, and were these men going to hand the country over to the alien? No. Throughout Canada the same love of country is maintained. He referred to the work of the United Empire Loyalists in the maritime provinces, men who had come to the wilderness to hew out a home for themselves, and did anyone think these men would sacrifice their country now for what someone had computed amounted to 43 cents per head per annum. He predicted a landslide on Sept. 21st, a landslide from Atlantic to Pacific and the people would then have good government and British Columbia would get justice from [illegible] of the [illegible] and would have no criticism to offer of the Laurier government although its record was something to tempt criticism. He proposed to discuss this reciprocity agreement independently. He would not have come forward to speak on a public platform in his position was it not for the fact that he regarded this pact as not in the interest of his country. He referred to a letter signed Observer in the Times which issued a challenge to anyone to give any instance in which a trade agreement had ever in history been followed by annexation. He proposed to take up that challenge. In 1875 a reciprocity treaty was entered into between the United States and the Hawaiian Islands. This was a little trade agreement which, it was thought, could be terminated. It referred to the importation of sugar into the United States from the islands. This agreement gave the Americans an interest in the islands where soil was fertile and labor cheap. These Americans then pulled certain strings and within 23 years the Stars and Stripes was hoisted over the Hawaiian islands and remained there.

THE GENERAL OUTLOOK.

The Colonist has never professed to be able to forecast the result of a federal election throughout the Dominion. The most it can do is to give such information as comes to it over the wires, which it believes to be as trustworthy as any information of the kind can be. It is true that the local Liberal paper prints reports that are to the contrary of those in the Colonist, and of course both papers cannot be right. There are some considerations that seem to us to make a Conservative victory altogether probable, apart from the question of reciprocity. One of them is the fact that the present government has been in power for fifteen years. This is a long time, and during it thousands of new voters have come into the field. The history of provincial and local politics in Canada shows that political parties fall to pieces after a long tenure of office. This was the case in Ontario where the Liberals were in the ascendant a long time, but were almost wiped off the board to their own surprise. It was true in Quebec where the old Rouge party fell to pieces of its own weight. It was true in New Brunswick, where the Conservative party disintegrated after a long term in office, to be followed by a Liberal administration, which went by the board for no special reason except that it became permeated with political dry rot. It was the case in Dominion politics, when after eighteen years of office the Conservative party met its Waterloo. There have been unmistakable signs that the Liberal party in federal politics has been for some time approaching dissolution, and it is said to be an open secret that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was glad to be able to make some reasonable excuse for dissolution while he had an issue that might obscure every other question. Things have from time to time pointed to the exit of the Liberals from office.

We only profess to be able to judge of the effect of the reciprocity issue upon the popular mind by observing what its influence is here in Victoria and the adjacent constituency of Nanaimo. There is no doubt at all that there is a very strong feeling in this part of Canada against reciprocity. Our advices point to the overwhelming defeat of both Mr. Smith and Mr. Templeman. We concede the inevitable uncertainties of election day; but we know that reciprocity has been losing ground very rapidly in the constituencies we have mentioned. If what is taking place here is taking place elsewhere, it is difficult to see how the government can hope to be sustained. The best opinion we are able to form after perusing what is contained in the newspapers of the whole country on both sides of politics is that the future of the Laurier ministry is so uncertain that any argument for the election of Mr. Templeman, based upon the claim that by electing him Victoria will have a representative in the cabinet, is not worth the breath it takes to utter it.

THE UNANSWERED ARGUMENT

Advocates of reciprocity have attempted to meet every other objection that has been advanced by its opponents, but they have not attempted to deal with the fundamental one, the objection which the Colonist took long before the nature of the agreement was announced. This objection was not to the character of the concessions that Canada might make, but to the making of any agreement at all with the United States government involving the regulation of the tariff. Such an agreement seemed to us then and seems to us now to be open to objection upon several grounds. We shall specify one of them.

Canada cannot prevent the United States from reducing its duties upon goods the produce of Canada, but as such reduction would only be made in any case because it is in the interests of the United States to make it, Canada would be unwise to give any concessions, no matter how trifling they might be as an inducement for the United States to make it.

The United States is passing through a transition period in respect to its tariff policy. There is nothing certain or final about what Congress may do with its tariff from session to session. Therefore it is unwise for Canada to tie herself to the government of that country by any agreement affecting the tariff.

The recognition of the principle that the tariff of Canada shall be from time to time subject to the indirect control of the United States Congress is an error of the gravest magnitude. We should always hold such control absolutely in our own hands.

The establishment of a precedent that the tariff of this country may be regulated to any extent whatever by the United States may operate to prevent free action by Canada in the event of opportunity arising to arrange preferential tariffs within the Empire.

Canada by the National Policy declared herself fiscally independent of the United Kingdom and ought not to enter upon any agreement with the United States whereby that independence shall be impaired in the slightest degree.

If a freer interchange of products between the two countries is desirable, each country can take such steps as it may deem necessary to promote that end, and an agreement between them is unnecessary.

An agreement, although it may in terms be set aside by either party when it so desires, cannot be so set aside by the smaller country of the two, when so great a disparity in population and aggregate wealth exists as in the case of the United States and Canada.

Some of these reasons were advanced by the Colonist long before any agreement was effected and long before party lines were drawn upon the question. They have never been met and they cannot be met successfully. They far outweigh any possible temporary advantage that might result to certain parts of the Dominion by the operation of the proposed agreement.

If it had been proved, and it cannot be proved, that reciprocity will reduce the cost of living, no patriotic citizen ought to be ready for such a small doubtful advantage to surrender the fiscal independence of his country.

If Canada is to remain a nation within the Empire, we must see to it that we keep our proud position unweakened by any trade agreements, which may hamper us for all time to come, and which will certainly give the public men and the public press of the United States an excuse for interfering in our affairs. Let our motto be:

"Canada for the Canadians."

A CAMPAIGN OF ABUSE.

Neither the Colonist nor any speaker on the Conservative side has during the present campaign indulged in the remotest degree in anything that can be called personal abuse. Mr. Templeman and those associated with him in his political work have been referred to with invariable courtesy, and we have even forborne to characterize the course of the Liberal paper as it is characterized even by Mr. Templeman's political friends. We propose to continue this course to the end of the campaign. We propose to deal with the public men as public men and with public questions as public questions. If we permit our assailants to escape the chastisement they so richly deserve, it is only because we are content to allow their unfriendly observations to go before the public without challenge or contradiction. If the Colonist and those concerned in its production have such a poor standing before the people of Victoria that it is necessary for them to reply to abuse that may be heaped upon them, we should regret it exceedingly. As it is we have only to say in the language of one of Britain's statesmen: "Cease, vipers, you bite against a file."

NOT REPRESENTATIVE

Mr. Templeman complained at Victoria West that he cannot get fair treatment from the Colonist. We have asked Mr. Templeman many questions, but he has replied to none of them. If he will favor us with replies we shall see that his statements are fairly presented. But this only by the way. We have said that Mr. Templeman is not truly representative of British Columbia or of Victoria, and having made this statement it is only fair to give reasons for it. Here is one incident. Our information is that some time ago the Letter Carriers petitioned the Post Office Department for an increase of pay, giving as a reason that the cost of living had so greatly increased here that they could not live on what they got. The Department ordered an increase of $15 a month; but when the payments came to be made the Deputy Postmaster General had things so figured out that some, at least, of the carriers only received $8 a month extra.

Now we take the point that if Mr. Templeman, being a member of the cabinet, had really been representative of British Columbia interests, he would have seen to it that the Letter Carriers were fairly dealt with and that they received what they were promised. But in that case, as in the recent case of the relaxation of the immigration regulations, either he did not do his duty or he was wholly ignored by the Department. In either case he was not representative of the people whose interests he was in duty bound to watch.

We are told that Mr. Templeman's honesty would not permit him to allow the payment of Mr. John Jardine's accounts. As this certificate to the Minister's character appears in his own paper, we are forced to assume that he does not know that Mr. Jardine's bills have been paid in full. But we are not surprised that he does not know it. Why should he know it or anything else pertaining to the province? Mr. Jardine's unpaid bills are election bills, and no one ever suggested that they should be paid out of the public treasury.

A correspondent writes to the local Liberal paper to say of Mr. Templeman: "When he personally conducted the editorial part of the Times, besides the business management, there was nothing unfair or unjust in his criticism of either the government or the members of the administration." It is highly satisfactory to learn this, because after September 21st Mr. Templeman will not be prevented by public duties from resuming the editorial management of his paper. And goodness knows it needs a change in the interests of decency.

The frantic manner in which the local Liberal paper is appealing to the "workingmen" is amusing. There are certain issues before the people, and the "workingman" is quite as able to form his own opinion upon them as either of the candidates or either of the newspapers. As a matter of fact, there is keener and closer consideration of public questions among the wage-earners than in any other section of the community. The day has gone by when workinngmen took any stock in any other appeals than those to their common sense. They no longer take their opinions ready made.

The local Liberal paper printed a letter last evening taken from D. E. Skinner, manager of the Puget Port Blakely Mill Company of Seattle, and originally printed in the Western Lumberman. In this letter Mr. Skinner says: "We can ship out lumber across the line, if we want, and manufacture to greater advantage for the Canada market than we can here with cheaper labor." The point to which we direct attention is Mr. Skinner's declaration that they have cheaper labor at Port Blakely than in British Columbia. This is what the Colonist has been contending all along.

Yesterday a gentleman who takes no part in politics and whose name ought, therefore, not to be mentioned, said to the Colonist: "I regard the issue before the electors as clear-cut. It seems to me that we have two courses open to us. One tends towards closer relations with the United States, and the other towards closer relations with the United Kingdom." There are thousands of people to whom that is the only question worthy of consideration. They do not go so far as to express the belief that reciprocity will lead to annexation; they do not attempt to think any further ahead than the tendency of the policy they are asked to sanction. They are not influenced by the fact that at present no steps are being taken in the direction of closer trade relation with Great Britain and the Empire. They look for the adoption in the future of such a policy, and meanwhile they are not going to vote for any measure which is almost certain to interfere with the consummation of such a result. There is a great quiet vote all over Canada which will be thrown against reciprocity on this ground alone.

On the Defensive.

Hon. William Templeman finds that Victoria demands his presence almost exclusively in this campaign. Mr Barnard, the Conservative candidate, is keeping him busy explaining why things are as they are. The minister of mines is clearly on the defensive and that means only one result—his defeat on September 21st. It is significant of the weakness of the reciprocity cause on Vancouver island that a minister of the Laurier cabinet finds that he dare not leave his constituency to help his party friends in other constituencies. But then Mr. Templeman would have a sorry time in Kootenays, where they are already at long distance asking him to explain how the proposed reciprocity treaty would benefit the mining interests of that section—which it will not. The fruit growers of Yale-Cariboo annd the Okanagan are also anxious to have such an authority as a member of the cabinet should be, explain how a larger market will benefit them in the face of the competition from the American fruit growing states. Then in our own Fraser valley the representative of British Columbia in the cabinet, who is supposed to have the interest of all the province at heart, might come along and tell the farmers here how they are going to be made richer facing the competition of the lower prices ruling for foodstuffs in Washington state, and what the Laurier government is going to do to improve the river means of transport, to furnish whatever wharves required and the other public works which the Laurier government is so generous in giving the eastern sections of the Dominion.—New Westminster Columbian.

Considerable speculation is being indulged in by residents of that district in consequence of the activity of C. P. R. surveyors along the South Thompson.

Vancouver's customs authorities recently consigned to the harbor a condemned consignment of 1,400 pounds of salted peanuts, which inspection by the health authorities showed to be wormy.

The black sands of the east coast of Queen Charlotte islands is to be worked for gold by modern processes, William Stewart having just shipped in a concentrating plant to his properties which, it is believed, will save the [illegible] gold [illegible].

Notes.

Ladies' day again today.

Game called at 3:30 o'clock.

One more lady has been added to those who sit alongside the press box. She is Mrs. Holmes, Ducky's wife, whose instructions to both teams, alike seem to work out as nicely as her husband's.

McCreery came up in the stand for the second game and was delighted when he learned that he had whiffed just ten Indians.

Cooney came in for a great deal of attention by the fans. After he missed that easy grounder he froze right up, as far as acting the comedian was concerned.

Nordyke's three-base hit in the sixth inning of the first game was a presentation by Umpire Dashwood. Clementson made a great run to field a foul fly back of first base. He missed the catch outside the foul line, and Dasher made a serious mistake by calling it a fair ball.

Million hauled down several at the fence yesterday, but drew a round of applause when he made a spectacular running catch of Melchoir's fly in the fifth inning of the first game. He played a snappy short.

There will be one game today, one tomorrow and a double header Friday. The game on Saturday commences at 2 o'clock.

Clementson drove in four of Victoria's eight runs in two games. He was the hitting boy yesterday, performing like a big leaguer with the stick. His home run in the first game scored two runs, and his three-base hit which landed on top of the board fence in centre field counted two more runs in the fifth of the second game.

Kraft came to the rescue in both games in the latter innings, but it was too late in both instances.

SZECHUAN REBELS

Imperial Government Instructs Viceroy to Proceed to Their Extermination—Fears of Spread

PEKING, Sept. 13.—An imperial edict issued today says the ringleaders in the disorders in Szechuan province intend to proclaim independence. As a consequence the Chinese government has ordered the viceroy to destroy the rebels to the last man. The viceroy's attention has been called to the fact that many of those taking part in the disturbances are misguided, and the government instructed him to distinguish between them and the actual rebels in imposing punishment.

The possibility of serious trouble in Szechuan is great. If the rebellion is not promptly suppressed, it is likely to spread to other provinces, where there has been much discontent of late. Some of the newspapers are urging the people to join in the rising, but the merchants everywhere are fearful that if the rebels are successful it might be the beginning of a general conflagration.

The Japanese legation has received a despatch indicating that Chinese troops are among the rebels who are besieging Chesa Tu. No reports have reached here, however, as to the extent of the affected area. The Yangtse region of the province has not yet risen although it is ready to participate if the movement seems to be successful.

It is not known whether the American and Canadian missionaries have left Chesa Tu. Their last telegram declared their intention of sending the women and children to safety.

"There is much truth," remarks the Worcester, Mass., "Gazette," "in the observation of President James J. Hill of the Great Northern, to the effect that the United States is bound to profit more by what it has prevented than by what it has gained." And the chief thing which reciprocity has a strong tendency to prevent is, as Mr. Hill suggests, imperial trade federation."

Prince Rupert citizens have adopted the bylaws ratifying the assessment agreement with the G. T. P. and also providing for an expenditure of not more than $550,000 on waterworks and electric light systems.

Anti-Tuberculosis Society—The regular monthly meeting of the senior branch of the Anti-Tuberculosis society will be held on Monday, September 18th, at 3 p. m. in the Balmoral hotel. Reports on Skeena Ores.—An interesting inspection of the new mineral zones of the Skeena river and Telkwa districts has just been completed by Mr. W. Fleet Robinson, Provincial Mineralogist, the results being embodied in his annual departmental report, already well advanced in preparation. The mineralogist is now paying a flying official visit to the Slocan district.

Racing to Hazelton.—The pathfinding "Flanders 20," at present essaying the overland trip to Hazelton for the forthest north motoring honors and the Chaloner & Mitchell trophy, reached Quesnel on Tuesday evening at 6:15, Pilot Sands reporting all well with the car and its crew. The trip was continued yesterday to Fort George, which city should be reached this evening.

New Weekly Journal.—The latest addition to the weekly journals of British Columbia has just been presented to the public in the "Chilliwack Free Press," a fully-grown eight-page newspaper which gives promise of becoming a force in the moulding of opinion in the Fraser valley. The "Free Press" represents the progress, evolutionary, of the "New Era," and is controlled and directed by Mr. C. A. Barber, a recent arrival in the province from Pilot Mound, Man. While declaring itself practically independent in politics, the "Free Press" is giving a qualified support to Liberalism in the present campaign.

Acquitted on One Charge—Sid Imber appeared in the police court yesterday morning charged with two offences. The one was for stealing a boat valued at $150, and the second for stealing a pair of oars, valued at $1.50. He pleaded not guilty to both charges, was acquitted on the first, of stealing the boat, and on the second charge he was remanded until this morning. There was evidence given which testified that the accused was "thought" to be the man who was seen at the boat house in James Bay at a very early hour on Tuesday morning, but on account of the darkness none of the witnesses could swear to identity.

Girl Guides—The Girl Guides, who have, for the past two months suspended their meetings will soon be at work again. On Monday next, Miss McBride will give an entertainment in the Congregational church, at which it is hoped the Guides and their parents will be present and at which a short address on their work will be given. On the following Tuesday their regular winter's training will begin. The first troop now numbers forty-five. Mrs. Castleton, who has been the leader, is more than satisfied with the experiment. The girls, she says, have improved in every way by the instruction given. The first aid lessons, given by Mr. Pomfret, have been specially valuable.

Impressive Ceremony—The beautiful and impressive service, that of draping the charter of the Ladies of the Maccabees of the World took place on Tuesday evening in the lodge room of Victoria Hive No. 1, in memory of Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister, their much beloved sister and past supreme commander, who with Miss Bina West organized this order for women and has held the high office of supreme commander for nearly twenty years. During the ceremony a handsome spray of white asters and asparagus ferns reposed on the altar, which after the service was placed across the top of a large portrait of the deceased lady hanging in the lodge room.

Indian Problem in the West. As a result of the consideration at the General Synod of the Anglican church just concluded at London, Ont., of the question of the Indian races in northern British Columbia, a memorial from the church in Canada will shortly be presented to both the Dominion and the Provincial government. The situation of the Indian races in this province was brought to the attention of the Synod by the Bishop of Caledonia, who pointed out that the extension of railways through the north country is slowly driving the Indian out of his original sphere of life, and something must be done to direct his energies in some new and useful direction, failing which the Indian problem must become a serious one in western Canada.

U. S. Cotton Crop.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 13.—Five hundred cotton growers and as many bankers, congressmen, United States senators and business men representing every cotton growing state in America, declared in convention today that cotton was worth 15 cents a pound, and resolved that the farmer should hold his cotton for that price. The resolution followed the committee report that the crop in America would not exceed 12,500,000 bales. For financing this crop this year, it was decided that the farmer should deposit his cotton in a warehouse and use his receipt as collateral until he could sell at not less than 15 cents.

NEWS OF THE CITY

Daughters of Scotland.—The regular monthly meeting of the Daughters of Scotland will be held this evening at the Foresters hall, for the transaction of important business.

Building Permits.—Building permits were issued yesterday by the building inspector to R. Hndean, dwelling on Cecil street, to cost $1,800; to E. A. Harris, dwelling on Chambers street, $4,600; to W. S. Tait, dwelling on Foul Bay Road, $5,500.

A Correction.—In the account of the coroner's inquest into the death of the late Mr. William Craig Stewart, it was erroneously stated that he had been for some time in the New Westminster penitentiary. This was an obvious mistake as Mr. Stewart had been at the asylum in New Westminster, as was stated in the account of his regrettable death.

Anniversary social.—At the regular meeting of Columbia Lodge, I. O. O. F., last evening it was decided to hold a social dance in the hall next Wednesday evening, Sept. 20, and to invite the members of Colfax Rebekah Lodge to participate. The 60th anniversary of the Rebekah degree falls on that evening, and it was deemed fitting that the occasion should be thus observed.

Subscriptions to Home.—The W.C.T.U. home committee gratefully acknowledge donations from the following: Mrs. David Spencer, Mrs. Frank Grant, the ministering circle of King's Daughters, Mrs. Henry Howson, Mrs. Grace Adams, Mrs. Dr. Humber, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Scowcroft. It has been decided to hold the annual pound party at the "Home" on Tuesday, September 26, to which the public will be cordially welcomed.

Public Works in B. C.—The Provincial Department of Public Works has recently had under consideration plans for the immediate improvement of the approaches to the White bridge at Kamloops, and has decided to accomplish the desired end by filling in at Hudson Bay Gulch and later on blowing out the rock bluff just west of the Kamloops city limits. The work will be inaugurated as soon as the rock crusher can be started up.

City Employe Injured.—J. Benson, an employee of the city, was knocked down by a street car on the Pandora avenue line last evening about 5 o'clock, badly cut about the head and rendered unconscious through being struck by the car bound eastward near the corner of Pandora avenue and Blanchard street. Benson was engaged shovelling loose earth back into an excavation made for a water connection. He was standing on the car track and apparently did not hear the car approaching. Dr. Hall was called and the injured man was attended to and removed to the St. Joseph's hospital in the Victoria Transfer company's ambulance.

Inspection of Timber Limits.—Mr. H. C. Wallin, who has been with the forestry branch of the Department of the Interior for several years, has been instructed to continue the work of inspecting timber limits within the railway belt in British Columbia, with a view to ascertaining which of these are suitable for being thrown open to settlement as agricultural lands and which are permanently to be reserved for forest purposes. The great demand for land for farming within the British Columbia railway belt has made this work one of considerable importance. The examination of tracts suitable for reserves will also be carried on. Mr. Wallin's assistants will be Messrs. H. C. Kinghorn, B. Sc. F., a graduate of the Forest school of the University of New Brunswick, who will have charge of a separate party for part of the season; H. S. Irwin, R. McG. Watt, G. H. Prince and C. H. Morse.

Sowing B. C. Trees in Ireland.—Should the dream of Sir Richard Musgrave, not long since a resident and enthusiastic sportsman of this province, be realized, the generation of a century hence may witness the miracle of British Columbia capitalists securing timber licenses and exploiting the re-created forestry resources of Ireland. Sir Richard, it will be remembered, has taken keen and practical interest in the reforestation of certain timberless sections of his own country of Waterford, and a few years ago sent to his old friend Mr. E. B. McKay, formerly surveyor-general, for seeds of the British Columbia spruce, cedar and larch. Seeds of the two former were carefully gathered and despatched, and Sir Richard now writes McKay that the seeds planted last season have grown well, and the tiny trees are already most interesting. Cedars from seed sown six years ago have now attained an average height of nine feet and are also thriving famously. A further supply of larch and yellow cedar seeds has been asked for. Sir Richard expects to re-visit British Columbia next year.

LAKE SHORE ROAD

Government to Immediately Commence Work of Improvement on Popular Highway

Motorists in particular, and the highway-using public generally, will learn with unqualified satisfaction that instructions have been given by the Public Works Department for the immediate improvement of what is generally known as the Lake Shore road, from a short distance above Cobble Hill, via Cowichan Station, to Duncan—a route to Duncan somewhat shorter though less picturesque than the Island Highway via Cowichan bay—the grades and curvatures of which are to be reduced, the surface improved and the roadway considerably widened. Although provision has not been made for this work in the estimates agreed to by the Legislature in February last, the work is regarded as one of urgency and is being proceeded with forthwith.

KAMLOOPS TO BE ON C. N. P. MAIN LINE

In Kamloops there is much rejoicing just now over the contents of the following news despatch from Winnipeg:

T. C. Holt, Canadian Northern executive agent for British Columbia, in an interview yesterday said his company would meet Kamloops if it was an assured fact that they would build their main line into the city, whether any encouragement was given by Kamloops or not."

This week work on the North Thompson section of the Canadian Northern Pacific is being begun by the sub-contractors, the Mac Donald brothers. Five hundred men will be set to work just as soon as this large force can be recruited. Pay offices have been opened in Kamloops and shops and storehouses established there.

president said that forces were at work to give an impetus to make Canada part of an Imperial commercial band, reaching around the world, and it seemed to him, the speaker, that it would be a first rate idea to defeat this reciprocity treaty and give strength to these forces which were something to be desired. (Loud applause). He spoke of Mr. J. H. McGregor's letter in the Colonist of Sunday in which he referred to what was in the mind of the people of the United States who believed that with this reciprocity pact passed they would be enabled to Americanize the Dominion.

Reversal of Policy

Mr. Andrews then went on to quote from the Times to the effect that it was the farmers of the northwest who had forced this reciprocity pact upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He quoted the various statements of Sir Wilfrid in which he said the time had gone by for Canada to seek reciprocity with the United States and the statement of Sir Wilfrid at the imperial conference when he said that Canada would send no more delegates to Washington. Now Sir Wilfrid Laurier had faced about and the Times gave the reason. These farmers of the northwest had forced this reciprocity agreement upon Canada.

Mr. Andrews told of how the people of the older provinces had spent millions and devoted their energies to building up the northwest, how railroads were built, canals dug, to give the northwest facilities for carrying its grain, and he referred to how free lands had been settled, and how the northwest was assisted, and said it was only right that now that the country has grown until it affords a market for Canadian manufactures and products there should be protection for the manufacturers and producers. He referred to the growth of Canada under the protection policy, and to the diametrically opposed arguments of the Liberal speakers who told farmers they would get more for their produce and people in cities that their cost of living would be reduced. He said there was no line in the reciprocity agreement which provided for any termination or change, and went on to refer to the prosperity of the Dominion, telling of the large amount of savings accounts, capital of chartered banks, foreign trade greater than that of any similar number of people, and asked if Canada required a change. It was a most dangerous experiment. He referred to its detrimental effect upon the fruit growing industry and said that as President Taft had said Canadians were at the parting of the ways on September 21st they would show him that their way would be that which lead to the consolidation of the British Empire and not to Washington. (Applause.)

The Songhees Reserve

Mr. H. C. Hannington said he had intended to refer to the reciprocity agreement but Mr. Andrews had covered it so well that he would confine his remarks to another matter which was one of the factors that would help Victorians to decide whether the government of Canada was treating the people properly. He referred to the Songhees reserve. This old question which had agitated the people of Victoria for many years had been solved and one of the features of the settlement which Victorians should remember as showing that the people of the city did not get fair and proper usage from the Ottawa government was the insistence upon the province giving up its reversionary rights in the new reserve. The terms of union provide that the Dominion government is trustee and manager of Indian reserves and the Indian lands were conveyed to the Dominion government as trustee for the Indians. When Indians leave the reserve they become part of the general lands of the province. When the local government brought about the arrangement with the Songhees Indians the trust terminated. The reserve came back to the province. The agreement provided that the local government should get a new reserve, but the Dominion government, however, refused to consent to the agreement unless the province agreed to waive all reversionary rights in the new reserve. The Ottawa government controlled the situation and could thus use its power unfairly. The Dominion by being trustee for the Indians could refuse consent and did so until it obtained from the British Columbia government the reversionary rights in the new reserve.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem and hearty cheers for Mr. R. L. Borden and the candidate, Mr. G. H. Barnard.

HOW TO EVADE THE ALIEN LABOR ACT

The following notice, issued by the superintendent of immigration in the Laurier government, of which Hon. Wm. Tempieman is a member, is self-explanatory:

NOTICE

204811 J. M. M.

Office of Superintendent of Immigration.

Ottawa, March 1, 1911

In order to meet the demand for railroad laborers in Canada last year, the regulations relating to money qualifications and "continuous journey" were relaxed for a certain period.

This year railroad laborers going to assured permanent employment at construction will be admitted to Canada from the 1st of May until the 30th of September, both dates inclusive, irrespective of money qualifications, or continuous journey provided they are native or citizens of the countries, or some one of the countries in which immigration effort is made by Canada, i.e., Great Britain, Ireland, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, or the United States of America, and provided also, that the immigrants are suited to railroad work and are in all other respects desirable, have sufficient money to carry them to the work for which they have been engaged and DOCUMENTARY OR OTHER SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE OF DEFINITE EMPLOYMENT to go to.

On the 1st October, 1911, this relaxation of the regulations will come to an end without further notice.

Superintendent of Immigration

ASKS FACTS BEFORE TRANSFER IS GRANTED

Mayor, As Chairman of License Commissioners, Adheres to Strict Letter of the Law

Alderman Moresby and Mayor Morley, the latter the chairman of the license commissioners, had a set to yesterday afternoon at the quarterly meeting of the board, when the former insisted that the board should follow its ruling of a few minutes before and permit the transfer of the license of the Carlton bar to the Grotton, the name under which Mr. Chamberlain conducted a saloon license in Trounce alley some time ago. His worship has no objection to the transfer, but he argued that until a proper application for the same were presented, no transfer should be granted.

Alderman Moresby, representing Mr. Chamberlain, was equally emphatic that no application is required where the change is from one part of a premises to another. Mayor Morley cited an opinion of the city solicitor contrary to Mr. Moresby's contention, but did not offer this opinion in evidence, though Alderman Moresby asked for it. His worship contended, following the opinion of the city solicitor, that as long as a license is conducted as a saloon license the board has the right to say when and under what circumstances a transfer shall be permitted. To permit a holder of a license to change the location of his premises one or two or more doors would be tantamount to permitting a change in the location of a license from one to another block, or even further than that.

Alderman Ross and Ex-Alderman F. W. Vincent, fellow commissioners with his worship, were in favor of permitting the change in location, but they stood with the mayor so far as to insist that proper application of the proposed change should be made to the board.

Alderman Moresby wanted to see the advice of the city solicitor as quoted by the mayor, but the latter declared it was a private opinion and he did not feel called upon to show it. He was ready, should the board refuse to take his stand, to fight the case and instruct the city solicitor to take action.

Alderman Moresby declared the mayor was not the "whole thing." He claimed there are other commissioners who would doubtless see that matters brought to their attention would be properly handled.

Alderman Ross and Ex-Alderman Vincent agreed that the application to change the license from C. Ikoff to Mr. Chamberlain should be entertained, but the change in location of the bar was not determined. It will come up again before the commissioners at a subsequent meeting.

While such determined objection on the part of the mayor was shown to the change in location of the license of the Carleton bar, a similar request on the part of the licensee of the Clarence hotel for a permit to transfer the saloon license from Yates street to a location on Douglas street, in the same premises, was granted.

A transfer of the license of the Colonial hotel, Johnson street, and a change in the name to the Grand Central hotel, was authorized as well as a transfer of the license of the Manitoba bar from Messrs. Wolfenden and Millington to Messrs. Phair and Mills.

The application of an extension of the temporary transfer of the license of the St. George's inn was ratified and extended until the next meeting of the board. A wholesale license was granted to J. Robertson and Sons.

STORM IN ILLINOIS

Part of Capitol Roof at Springfield is Blown Away—Lineman is Electrocuted

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 13.—Spreading wreck and ruin in its wake, a destructive wind storm held Springfield and central Illinois in its grip three hours this morning. The damage caused by the storm will total hundreds of thousands of dollars. A death is reported from Taylorville, where a lineman was electrocuted while repairing wires.

By far the largest single loss was that sustained by the state when the wind carried away a large portion of the new copper roof of the capitol, blew in numerous windows and uprooted shade trees. The damage to the state house is $30,000.

Thousands of acres of growing corn were laid flat and much fruit was destroyed.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. HERE AND THERE

Orphanage Pound Party

The annual pound party at the orphans' home is always an enjoyable affair. It is very much in the nature of a family gathering for there are always old friends to see and friendly enquiries to answer.

There are, too, kind people whose faces are not familiar but whose sympathy with the children form a common bond. Ever since the new building was erected and many years before Mr. Hayward has been present to show his interest in the orphans to whose welfare he has given much thought.

This year the attendance was not so large as usual, perhaps owing to the unusual date at which it was held. The donations were, however, liberal and very varied. Sacks of flour and of sugar sent by rich merchants or householders were not more thankfully received than the little parcels of fruit or sweets brought by children to the orphans.

Many of the visitors went through the beautifully clean and airy rooms and saw the children as they stood about in little groups, many of them listening to the music which Mr. Arthur Longfield was kindly playing.

Pretty children, many of them were, and as the matron, Miss Craddock, and her assistant, Miss McLennan, moved about among them, it was easy to see that the little folk responded to the kindness shown them. And yet, one could not but be sorry for the motherless little ones. There are 14 under six, three at least, but babies. Altogether there are about 50 boys and girls sheltered and cared for in the home, a family of three having arrived yesterday.

Among the visitors were Mrs. Paterson, Mrs. Riley, Mrs. McBride, Miss Mary McBride and Miss Bride of New Westminster, Mrs. J. A. McDonald, Mr. Charles Hayward, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Ernest Hayward, Rev. Baugh Allan, Rev. T. E. Holling, Miss Tolmie, Mrs. Goodacre, Mrs. Stadthagen and Mrs. Munday, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. McTavish, Mrs. Todd, Mrs. Teague, Mrs. D. Muller, Miss McTavish, Mrs. Langley, Mrs. Teague, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Scholecroft, Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Few, Mrs. Vigelius, Mrs. Munsie, Mrs. Huckle, Mrs. Toller, were members of the committee of management, who served tea and refreshments from the bountifully spread tables.

Mrs. W. Higgins' cheery welcome was greatly missed and many were the enquiries for her, and wishes expressed for her speedy recovery from the illness which, for a time, has kept her from her usual work for the little ones.

This year the donations were: Hon. J. S. Helmcken, $5; Mrs. Richard McBride, $5; Mrs. J. A. Macdonald, $5; Mayor Morley, $5; Mr. Charles Hayward, $5; Mrs. J. B. Lovell, $5; Mr. J. Virtue, $2; Mrs. Angus Campbell, $5; Miss Mona Miller, $2; Mrs. Geo. Powell, $5; Mrs. Hebden Gillespie, $1; Mrs. T. Shotbolt, $5; Mrs. J. Pawson, $5; Mrs. Vigelius, $1; Mrs. J. W. Williams, $5; Mrs. Clapham, $5; Mrs. Denny, $5; A Friend, $1; A Friend, $2; Rev. Baugh Allen, $1; Mrs. T. E. Holling, $1; Miss Cowper, $5; Marjorie Moody, 50c; Ethel Bent, 50c; Elsie M. Women's Institutes.

No woman could look at the displays of the Intsitutes of Metchosin, Lake and Gordon Head in the Women's Building at the Fair without realizing that in the work of the development of Vancouver Island such organizations are doing good, the value of which it would be hard to overestimate.

The great need of British Columbia now is workers on the land. In the cities, at the mines and in the lumber camps, there are thousands of hungry mouths to feed. That the greater part of this food must be brought to us over the mountains, across the ocean, or from the neighboring republic, is a condition which should be put an end to as soon as possible. If the land is to be cultivated the women must do their part, and that a very important one. In this age it is not easy to persuade women to endure for themselves or their children the hardships of the old-time pioneer. The invention of agricultural machinery has lightened the labors of the farmer. Even the clearing of land, that most difficult of operations, has been made comparatively easy by modern science.

But the farmer's wife is confronted by many of the same difficulties which made her grandmother's life too often one of drudgery. In this country it too often happens that loneliness and disolation are added to the other hardships of life in the country for women. The old community of interest which made life in the most remote backwoods settlement where immigrants from the same vicinity made their home is not felt by people who in these days of rapid transportation are brought together from widely separated parts.

There is, too, on the part of many women who go into the country here, little experience in the work that they have to do. Some have been brought up in cities, others in country districts where circumstances are very different from those of a new country.

To combat this isolation, to knit the scattered families into a community, feeling that they have common aims and common interests, to create a friendly rivalry between different sections, and, above all, to teach women how to make their homes comfortable and beautiful, is part of the work that the Women's Intsitute movement is intended to do.

That much progress has been made towards these ends, the exhibits show. It would have been impossible to bring together such excellent specimens of woman's work if there had not been cordial and energetic co-operation between the members of each Institute.

It is not, however, the excellent cooking and preparation of food, important as these are, the useful or beautiful needlework or the tasteful decoration of the booths that are the best results of the work of the Institutes.

Behind all these are the help and sympathy in time of trouble, advice in time of perplexity and discouragement and a sane and hopeful determination to make life in the country happy and beautiful, as well as strong and wholesome.

Homes are better kept, children more wisely cared for, tables spread with greater care and truer economy because of the meetings that have been held during the year.

It is to be hoped this woman's movement will spread, till in every country district of the Province the farmer's wives realize that with their husbands they are doing work, than which none is more important or more patriotic.

The Y. W. C. A. Convention.

It is to be hoped that all the women in Victoria who can do so, will attend the convention which begins to morrow evening in the hall of the Y. M. C. A. The local society deserves well of the citizens. Its little band of energetic workers has accomplished a great deal during the past three years. It is quite true that they owe a great deal to the support of business men who have seen the need of their friendly and protective work.

But the time has come for expansion. With the business and industrial growth of Victoria the number of girls employed has greatly increased. This city is neither worse nor better than scores of others which have found that the Y. W. C. A. is needed, not only for the protection of the young and inexperienced, but for the higher interests of all the young women of the city. But like many of the girls themselves, the organization here is inexperienced. The delegates who will speak at the convention will tell of the best ways of doing the work, which we can all see, needs to be done. There are hundreds of women here, who have leisure and means who have not hitherto seen the need of their help in this direction. Will not these women attend the convention and hear what is to be said? There are many ways of serving our city, but none of these is more important than to make it a safe, a happy and an elevating home for its young womanhood. It is well worth our while trying to find out what the visitors and the workers in our own city have to say as to the influence which the Young Women's Christian Association has in this direction.

The Need of Teachers.

Now that the schools and colleges are about to open, most young people and their elders are giving some thought to the future occupation of the older students. In every High School many girls are beginning to make definite preparation for teaching. But very few, perhaps scarcely any of the lads have the same aim in view. Those who have, are preparing for professorships in universities with situations in High Schools as stepping stones. And yet, in the district schools of this great Province and in the graded schools of our cities there is work for strong, wise men. Men, as well as women, have a natural talent for teaching and it is a great misfortune when this talent is diverted into other channels. How the tendency to desert this field is to be counteracted, it is very hard to tell. That its abandonment to women is to be deprecated is very certain. Schools no more than homes should be under the government of one sex.

Lack of School Accommodation.

The Banks Street School has been opened, but it has failed to relieve, as was hoped, the congestion in the Central School. It has been found necessary by the long delay in the erection of the new high school to take the movable buildings in which the little girls of the Central Ward have for the past three years been taught, for the use of the young ladies and gentlemen of the advanced classes. The utmost that the principals of the two central schools have been able to accomplish in the way of saving room is to leave one room, and that a small one, at the disposal of two teachers. The medical inspector, Dr. Wasson, has refused to allow the little girls to remain all day in the close room, and they have had additional time for play, which will not do them the least harm.

It is possible to convert an office or hall into another room and, it is said, this expedient will be tried. In the meantime the High School playground is being encroached upon by additional buildings.

The situation is one which the citizens should take into immediate consideration. The Central School building is not a credit to the city. It is manifest that even when the new High School is built, the present building will not take the place of the old block which hsould have been abandoned before this. Victoria is growing apace. The best citizens she can have are young parents with growing families. In all the western cities of Canada, including those of our own Province, boards of school trustees are vying with each other in the building of fine schoolrooms. It is perfectly true that good teachers can teach well even with poor accommodation and inferior appliances. But Victoria has no need to place either teachers or children under any such disadvantages.

Cuts and bruises may be healed in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. It is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation. This liniment also relieves soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

Games Today.

Spokane at Victoria.
Tacoma at Vancouver.
Portland at Seattle.

For a smack of the real thing in the baseball line the fans don't need to go any further than the kind that was dealt out at the local yard yesterday and for a bunch of foolish-looking one-time champs the Spokane Indians, on this occasion at least, were entitled to the first prize.

The Islanders, under the silent but effective leadership of "Ducky" Holmes, gave those pennant contenders, the horsehide chasers from the other side of the line who have visions of heading the Beavers off in the 1911 race, two of the prettiest trouncings that they have received this season. Think of it—a double-header—and Victoria, the league's doormat, grabbed all the honors and in such peppery fashion that there can't be any doubt that merit, not luck, decided the issue.

There wasn't much between the two in either of the games, the score in the first being 4-3 and in the second 4-2, which is as might be expected for the champs are not made of the stuff that takes a licking easily, and, what is more, they had much more at stake than the lowly ones.

McCreery's Mark.

Heaver McCreery went right after the Indians from the start of that first game and there was no blowing up in the fifth or the sixth—an occurrence which the enthusiasts have mourned on more than one occasion. With a bright and clever young fellow announced as Houck, one of J. Cohn's recent pitching acquisitions, coached by the astute Backstop Ostiek, against him, "Mc" knew that he had to go some. At that it is no reflection on his performance to say that if it hadn't been for the splendid support vouchsafed, as a glance at the hit columns will show, he wouldn't have fared so well. Still in the second inning he pulled himself out of one of those situations that send chills of anxiety chasing up and down the backs of the true enthusiast. There was only one down when the bases filled. That came through Brennan's slip caused through speeding up too much on Cocash's infield drive with the idea of bringing off a double. The result was that both were safe. Then McCreery tightened up in grand style and whiffed a couple, the victims being Melchoir and Kippert.

Fourth Tells Tale.

The game's decisive stanza was the fourth. In the Indians' turn Nordyke swiped the pill over the fence and made the circuit. Victoria's half brought Clementson and Brennan into the limelight. The former walked and stole second. Goodman fanned. Kellar poked an easy one just over First-baseman Nordyke's head. It passed through his mitts and the runner was safe. Meanwhile Brennan had gone to third and while several players, including Manager Ostdiek of the Indians, were arguing at the initial sack the wide-awake local short sprinted for home and was safe by yards. After Kennedy had been caught out, Clementson clouted the ball behind one of the centre field sign-boards and Kellar and he trotted across the pan, making a total of three.

Again the clouds gathered in the sixth when Cartwright's walk and Nordyke's three sacker counted for one, but smart fielding brought the agony to a close. The same, or rather much the same thing happened in the seventh when Cocash swatted a two-bagger and Melchoir secured a timely single, the result being another. In the same period Victoria brought in another man, McMurdo doing the work unassisted, a long drive beyond the fence being responsible.

In the ninth Cooney was the only Indian to do anything. He got to the bags on a single and when Melchoir, the last to retire, dribbled an easy one to McMurdo, the crowd breathed a sigh of relief and gave vent to their feelings with cheers.

The Second Game.

If anything the second game was cleaner and faster than its predecessor. Catcher DeVogt, with Lake on the rubber, handled the battery like a veteran, being steady and keeping the runners glued to the bases. While a whole lot of praise is due the young dentist pitcher for his performance on the mound it should not be forgotten that he was being coached along the stony path composed of the champs' hard hitters by a wise head in the person of the local backstop. To hold these lads down to five hits is travelling a bit fast for cellar champions and they deserve the congratulations of the fans. O'Loughlin, the new Spokane twirler, wasn't as fortunate, the Islanders getting to him for nine which, however, were fairly well scattered, the most that came in an inning being three. As a matter of fact if there had been no errors the score would have stood two to one in Victoria's favor at the finish.

Spokane's first run came in legitimate fashion. It was scored in the first inning. Cooney walked, was advanced one bag on Melchoir's sacrifice, Nordyke drew a pass and Zimmerman's single did the business. Victoria's two earned runs were tallied in the fifth when Goodman and Kellar hit safely, and Clementson's beautiful three bagger helped them to their destination. In the sixth the Islanders' duplicated the performance, but the runs came because of the Indians' temporary ascension. It was Nordyke's error that allowed DeVoght safe and it was Cooney's fumble of an easy one that gave Million a life. It was Spiesman's failure to hold a thrown ball that allowed "Rex" to make good in a home steal. Goodman's hit was the only legitimate piece of work of the stanza, his single resulting in Million's run. The visitors got their tally in the last through McMurdo's failure to grab a rather poor throw.

Taking it all through, however, the game was replete with sensation. The outfield of both teams was on tiptoe, gathering in flies that seemed to be tabbed for safeties. Million and Kippert were particularly prominent in this work, the former receiving quite an ovation on one occasion for a specially brilliant piece of work. A glance at the doubles recorded in both contests will give some insight into the kind of ball the Victoria infield was furnishing.

V. W. A. A. FOOTBALL PLAYERS ORGANIZE

Now that the different soccer teams of the city are busy organizing for the season the boys of the Victoria West Athletic association have decided that it is time for them to get in line, so as to be able to hold up the end of that organization in the good old game of association football. Their past record is an enviable one. For the last three years their team have won the city championship and last season their second team also won the senior amateur championship of the island and just recently annexed another cup emblematic of the senior championship of British Columbia. It will thus be seen that the green shirts have a reputation to live up to, and word comes from the management that they intend doing so.

The west club has this season, as heretofore, entered three teams in the city league, senior, second division and junior, and all players are asked to turn out at Macaulay Point grounds on Sunday morning for an initial practice.

On Monday night next at 8 o'clock a meeting will be held in the clubrooms, Catherine street, to organize for the season. Managers and captains will be elected for the first two teams and a full attendance is requested. New players will be made cordially welcome.

After the business of the evening has been transacted a social gathering will be held, when a musical programme will be rendered and refreshments served.

PRINCE PALATINE WINS ST. LEGER

King William, the Favorite, Finishes in Third Place in Yesterday's Race —Local Sweepstakes.

DONCASTER, Eng., Sept. 13.—The hopes of Lord Derby of at least winning the last of the classic races today were disappointed when his King William could do no better than third in the St. Leger, behind C. Pilkington's Prince Palatine and J. B. Joel's Lycaon, who finished in that order. [King William [illegible]] started favorite at 6 to 4, but both the winner and second were well backed at 100 to 30 respectively. Giving away 12 pounds, Prince Palatine came within a head of winning the Biennial at Ascot, and though shortly after he was beaten half a length by Mushroom at Newmarket he was regarded as an improving colt and with Sunstar out of the way, was much favored by the betting public. He justified the confidence of his backers by winning in easy fashion with a margin of six lengths. He is by Persimmons, out of Lady Lightfoot, and was ridden by the American jockey, F. O'Neill, who was brought over from France for that purpose. Lycaon, which was second, is regarded by Morton as being much inferior to the Derby winner, and there is little doubt that Sunstar would have won the "Triple X Crown" could he have stood his preparation. The summary:

The St. Leger stakes of 6500 sovereigns, for three-year-old colts and fillies, 1 mile six furlongs and 132 yards, won by T. Pilkington's Prince Palatine, J. B. Joel's Lycaon second, Lord Derby's King William third. Also ran: Pietri, Atman, Cherry King, Longboat, Beaurepaire and Bachelor's Hope.

WILL INTRODUCE PRO. FOOTBALL

Victoria Soccer Eleven will be Entered in Competition with Vancouver, Cumberland, Nanaimo and Ladysmith

Victoria is going to see professional soccer this season.

This decision, somewhat of a momentous one, was arrived at last night when a large number of players and enthusiasts gathered to discuss the proposal. It was agreed that it was time that the local public be given an opportunity of witnessing a better form of association football than has been furnished in the past, and it was the consensus of opinion that this city should enter an eleven in the provincial league which is in process of organization and which will include two Vancouver teams, one from Cumberland, another from Nanaimo, a fifth from Ladysmith and the last, and it is hoped not least, from the Capital.

It must not be supposed that this move has been launched here without due consideration. The enterprise has been mooted for some weeks and is only now coming to a head. For a long time the opinion has been that Victoria has not been getting the best class of football available because the local players have been too widely scattered among the various districts. The result has been a large number of fairly strong teams and none that could be depended upon to put up a really fine exhibition. It is true that last year the Victoria West and North Ward aggregations were exceptions, but taking the local leagues all through it is the general opinion that they have not been as good as might be and that the contests have not been such as to command the public's attention for the reason stated. Now the intention is to gather together one fast eleven representing the city, which will be entered in the provincial league with the idea of carrying off the Coast championship.

Only preliminary matters were dealt with at last night's meeting. Another session will take place next Wednesday night when delegates will be appointed to attend the league's annual meeting at Vancouver about a fortnight hence when the schedule will be drafted.

MORRIS-FLYNN BOUT WILL NOT BE STOPPED

"White Hopes" Not to Be Interfered With in New York—Other Promoters Having Their Troubles.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—After an executive session of the State Athletic association today, at which testimony was taken relative to the lease held by Patrick Powers' club on Madison Square Garden, Commissioner Frank O'Neal said:

"I consider the evidence sufficient to revoke the license of the club on the ground of the lease not meeting the requirements of the law."

Mr. O'Neal said he would lay the case before Governor Dix but explained that if the commission were divided—the only other member, Commissioner Dixon, opposing Mr. O'Neal's course in the matter—no action against the club could be taken until the governor should appoint a successor to Chairman James E. Sullivan, resigned.

This means that there will be no stopping the Carl Morris-Jim Flynn bout, scheduled for Friday night.

Among those approved by the commission today as referees were Terry McGovern and Tom Sharkey.

Frank Ufer, manager of Carl Morris, the Oklahoma giant who will box Jim Flynn 10 rounds in Madison Square Garden Friday night, received a telegram tonight notifying him that a special train would arrive in New York from St. Louis Friday morning, bringing a delegation of prominent men from Oklahoma and Kansas to see the contest. The delegation from Sapulpa, which is Morris' home town, will be headed by Mayor Denton. Morris is a 2-to-1 favorite over Flynn in Oklahoma. Both Flynn and Morris will wind up their work tomorrow.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The non-conformists are determined to prevent if possible the scheduled fight between Jack Johnson and Bombardier Wells. The articles call for a championship battle in London on Oct. 2. The Rev. F. B. Meyer is leader of the movement to stop the mill, which he has already denounced from the pulpit. The general commission of the National Council of Free churches has been summoned to meet September 29 to devise steps to be taken to stop the fight and the exhibition of the fight pictures.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 13.—The Wolgast and McFarland boxing bout will not be permitted.

BRITISHER WINNING

Mr. H. H. Hilton Going Strong in the National Amateur Golf Championship of U. S. A.

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 13.—The American grip on the amateur golf championship was further loosened by today's play in the national tournament, in which Harold H. Hilton, British champion, easily won his way into the third round by defeating R. C. Watson of West Brook, 11 and 10. Although seven good American players tonight stand between him and the title, the betting was two to one on Hilton against the field.

Those who won today are paired for the third round tomorrow as follows:

Harold H. Hilton, Royal Liverpool and Jerome D. Travers, Upper Mont Clair, N. J.

C. W. Inslee, Wykagyl, and F. W. Whittemore, Country Club, Brooklyn.

Frederick Herreshoff, Ekwanox, Manchester, Vermont, and Oswald Kirby, Englewood, N. J.

Albert Seckel, Riverside, Chicago, and Charles Evans, jr., Edgewater, Chicago.

By luck of the draw, two surviving western players, both from Chicago, are pitted against each other.

As a rule the eight matches today fulfilled expectations, although there were several close finishes, notably between "Chick" Evans of Chicago and A. F. Kammer, the French champion.

Hilton's game today was of such precision that "Bob" Watson kept slipping back constantly until the one-sided struggle ended at the 28th hole. Kirkby also had a runaway match with J. Douglas Brown of Edinburgh, Irish champion, who proved no match for the Englewood player.

NINE SPECIAL BARGAINS

Just Off Hillside Avenue

Here is a chance for the people who are pinning their faith on Hillside Avenue—and many are.

These lots comprise part of Blocks 1 and 2, Plan No. 844, Sections 27 and 28, and are among the best buys in this favored district.

Some of these lots have been sold without advertising, but in order to give everyone an equal chance to "get in" on this good thing, we decided to place them on the market at the prices quoted below.

These lots are exceptionally fine from every standpoint. They are a good size, 50 x 132—some larger—and are cleared and high and dry. Every lot is a view lot and commands a splendid view of the surrounding country.

In addition to the fine, high situation of these lots, is the question of surrounding improvements. In this respect these lots are particularly favored. The fine, large school to be built in this district is but a short distance from these lots. Then there is the widening, paving and double-tracking of Hillside Avenue, which is calculated to raise surrounding prices to almost any height. These lots are only a short distance from Hillside Avenue.

Even if no such improvements were certain in this district, these lots would be good buying at the prices asked; but with their splendid high position and these sure improvements, it is easy to see the investment possibilities they contain.

Now there are only nine of these lots, and there are many people looking for just such an opportunity. It is therefore up to you to act quickly if you want one of them.

THERE ARE NINE LOTS

Reciprocity.

Sir,—As an Old Countryman, and one that has seen the folly and misery of free trade, will you kindly allow me to point out a few things respecting the above questions?

I was one of a party on the Royal George, that left Bristol in December last, when I first heard of this subject that affects Canada so much at the present time, from a Canadian returning from a visit to the Old Country. We all listened to him advocating this sort of thing, but none of us Britishers took it in seriously until the second or third day out, when, I think, without one single exception, we all assured him of his folly, and several of us openly told him this was the very reason we, as Englishmen and Britishers, were leaving the Old Land, and on that very ship, driven, as it were, away from our native land, through such a mistaken policy in England; and could not for a moment bring ourselves to believe that Canada would be so foolish as to adopt such a policy as this, which has ruined the Old Land. There the shops in every city are full of foreign goods and thousands of Englishmen starving. Only look at the Ebbe-Vale Iron and Steel works, where I lived several years—closed down since my arrival in Canada, 3,000 men idle; one of the finest works in South Wales, and the place nearly ruined by foreign competition. German and American bar irons dumped into Newport and Cardiff in thousands of tons, and as the manager of that company told the men, at a dollar and a quarter a ton less price than English bars can be sold at. Only think of this, in a country where thousands are out of employment already.

Trading between nations is a necessity and a benefit, no doubt; but at the same time nations, like individuals, should never lose sight of the fact that "everything has its opposite," which was the logical saying of Plato, and anything which is a benefit, through abuse will also become a curse, and excessive international trading soon becomes so, which any nation may suffer from. They soon exhause their own resources in the attempt to exploit one another, so that the line must be drawn somewhere. Canada is doing well now, if they will only leave well enough alone. Some years ago the great cry in England was South Africa. They were South Africa mad, till the war upset it, and it has never caught on since. Now its Canada, Canada, Canada, that's the cry over there at present, and if Canada will just go on as they are, quietly, in a few years more Canada will be one of the finest countries in the world; for Britishers have proved themselves the greatest colonists in the world, and they still have money and energy left, and Canada today is the country the Mother Land will spend it on.

There was a certain Welsh shopkeeper I once heard of who, when a traveller called, said to him: "You see, I was marry since you was here last, and now I was patronize my relations. Mr. Jones, you see, is a relative to my wife, saying see this is a child of his, pointing to a youngster close by, and she do wish me to patronize him when he do call around so I was do what I can to help him." As the traveller had previously heard of the marriage and that Mr. Jonens was the father of this, her lone child, of course he went away smiling, saying to himself, bless their relationship.

Now Canada, the Welshman, you may say, was a fool, but as soft as he was, I don't think he would have cared to marry Mrs. States with her thirteen children, who, they tell me, now practically boss the show. There would be something to do to support and help all this lot. There is Andrew, John D., Trusty, and the rest of her little million heirs ready to exploit you. That, really, I think, I should prefer the Welshman's bargain, under strong protestations, even against my kind relations. I don't know how he got on after—I left before I knew whether free trade ruined him.

Now, Canada, don't be led astray. We boys from the Old Country have seen enough of free trade.

I can assure you, call it what you like, reciprocity, it sounds like sophistry, if you know what that means, fallacious and ludicrous reasoning, to Englishmen; that have their living to get, for there is no philosophy about it. An old captain I was acquainted with said to me at the time of the last election in the old country. I wonder you Englishmen have not seen through this thing before, as you know, I am an old sea captain, and for many years traded between this country and Alexandria in Egypt and was in that port at the conclusion of the war, when the order came out asking us all to decorate our ships that were in the harbor the day peace was proclaimed, in honor of the occasion. When another captain connected with the port came up and spoke to me, he said what do you think of this, is it not a grand and glorious day for British arms? Now we shall have peace to go on with our business. Well, I said, it is, after I heard all he had to say, but said I now, will you allow me to say something you have allow me to say something, you have known me this many years and no harm of me, but now what I am going to say is something very hard, but I hope there will be no offence, if so I would not say it. Not at all, he said, go on. Well, I said, now I heard all you said and admit it is a grand day, but after all, don't you think yourself a traitor to your country? What, what, he said, and jumped up. Sit down, I said, I told you I should say something hard, allow me to explain myself. Here am I, as you know, been trading back and fro for years, and at one time it was all British goods that came here, and scarcely any foreign, of any kind; now where is the British goods today? Here you have spent the British ratepayers' money, and left their blood and bones on the sands of Egypt, for what? to open up a market for foreigners through this cursed free trade, and I as a naturalised Britisher have had to help to bear it, as my home is in England and I pay for my privileges. He said he was dumbfounded and went away. Next morning he came and shook hands, and said, I could not sleep last night for thinking of what you said. I never thought of that before, but you are right. And we both went ashore and [illegible] full of all kinds of foreign goods and very little British, and they had never paid a cent towards the cost of the war. Canada! Canada! stick to your own, let the trade of Canada be for Canada, and those that live there, and support the dear old flag. This should be the B. C. and the "Y Zed" policy of you all.

J. MULLARD.

Reciprocity and Its Effect.

Sir,—Doubtless there are many Liberals who are voting for reciprocity because it is the policy of the Liberal party at the present time. Doubtless, also the opposite may be said of many Conservatives who are opposing it. A great many are exercising an independent opinion and will vote according to their deep-seated convictions on the subject.

Apart from the fact that the writer is a Conservative, he has always been opposed to any form of commercial compact with the United States, even when it was in good standing and respect in the Conservative ranks, and for the reasons that

First—It would be bad for Canada industrially and commercially.

Second—It would have the effect of alienating us from Empire associations.

Third—It would tend to Americanise our political and social institutions.

In other words we would become pan-American instead of pan-Imperial in our international interests, and our greatest possible future—politically and economically—is as part of the British Empire. We should not regard the question from the "old flag" or the sentimental point of view but purely from the point of view of what is best for Canada. Sentiment is a strong tie, but not strong enough to hold if economic interests are opposed to it.

It is pointed out that under the old reciprocity treaty with the United States, Canada was prosperous, and that it was the policy of both parties for a long time subsequently to bring it into force again, and it is contended, therefore, that it should have the support of both parties now.

This view overlooks several important facts. Canada at that time had no great west. It had no great lines of communication. Limited in population and natural opportunities for the expansion of trade, the disturbed conditions in the United States and the civil war having paralysed the productive forces of the United States, the situation afforded a market for natural products that was abnormal and unusual. Conditions existed then which have never since existed and will probably never exist again, except in the case of another great war. Had the commercial treaty not been abrogated, it is absolutely certain that Canada would have been part of the American union today. It was the abrogation of that treaty that led to the consolidation of our own scattered territory and the opening of the west, wherein we have found a new and better market, and one which ultimately made us independent of the United States and prosperous in a degree never before experienced.

Because Canada was prosperous in that remote but brief period on account of conditions which were unusual and extraordinary, and on account, too, of the academic belief in the merits of free trade, people came to regard reciprocity and prosperity as cause and effect, whereas the former was merely an accidental causation. That belief was deep seated for a long time, until, in fact, we demonstrated that our greatest prosperity and future were in our own hands.

There is no sense in reasoning about conditions which existed fifty or sixty years ago conditions which have changed absolutely and completely. A policy adapted to those conditions might be the worst possible for those which exist today. It really makes very little difference what Sir John Macdonald or the Conservative party thought about reciprocity thirty years ago. Times change, and we change with them. But talking of that, ordinarily we would not expect to see Liberals recommending a policy because Conservatives once advocated it.

There are many reasons why the reciprocity pact should not be confirmed—too many indeed to discuss in one article; but there are several arguments put forward in its favor which are very conclusive arguments against it. A British Columbia contemporary, for instance, contains cartoons representing the trusts and "interests" as opposing reciprocity because it is favorable to the consumer, whom, it is alleged, it is their desire to squeeze as much as possible. This is a variation of the old economic fable about free trade being inimical to the development of trusts. As a matter of fact, under modern conditions trusts are only controlled at all by the systems of protection which are in vogue. It is because the United States with its population of 100,000,000 has free trade among its 50-odd states and territories that the enormous trusts of that country have been developed. The wider the circle of free trade the bigger the trust can become. As a consequence, the representative of every large trust and big interest in the United States is enthusiastically in favor of reciprocity, and for the reason that the only restriction to his operations on this continent is the tariff wall which meets him at the Canadian boundary.

The other argument, that of the 100,000,000 market opened to the Canadian producer, is the direct refutation of the claim that the consumer is to be benefited. If the United States market is the cheaper market, obviously the Canadian producer can not be benefited by selling in it. If, on the other hand, the United States market is not the cheaper market, then the consumer cannot benefit by reciprocity. Either argument might be sound; but both cannot be. In British Columbia, where the argument in favor of the producer cannot possibly stick, we are told that the consumer will benefit. In other parts of Canada the producer is told that he will get rich by selling in their market even though prices are cheaper in that market than in this.

It is true that in the Pacific coast states the jobbing prices of produce are lower than here, but it does not follow that retail prices will correspond, or be materially altered. The retail market is governed by other conditions as well as the wholesale prices. Retail prices are largely artificial, governed by arrangement and the margin of waste in perishable products. In farm products, the establishment of public markets would do far more towards the lowering of prices than is possible through reciprocity.

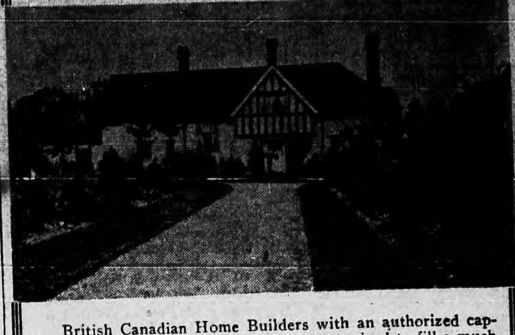

The practical result of it all will be that the competition introduced will seriously injure the home producer and give to the commission houses of Seattle and Portland the control of the entire market of British Columbia, and in fruit as far west as Winnipeg. On the other hand, the farmers of Alberta, who supply the greater part of the home produce at present imported—millions of dollars annually in oats, hay, wheat, beef, bran, mutton, etc., etc.—will be forced to seek a market elsewhere at lower prices. British Columbia's recent prosperity is largely attributable to the market afforded by the settlement of the Middle West for fruit and lumber. The trade between the two contiguous provinces has been mutually profitable in a high degree. Reciprocity clearly, therefore, will sweep away the benefits which should and do accrue from interprovincial trade, which, so far as the west is concerned is the chief object of Confederation.

A condition not unlike that exists in eastern Canada. The truck farming of the south, which is carried on by cheap labor will cheapen many of the products of Ontario and Quebec. Even at the present time that competition is felt keenly in Ontario. It all comes to the old argument of free trade reducing the cost to the consumer at the expense of the producer, who is the creator of the wealth of the country and from whom the consumer must obtain his purchasing power.

The great and determining factor in the whole question of reciprocity from an economic point of view is that the productive forces of the United States, being the older and more populous country, are much more highly specialised and organised, than in Canada, and that until conditions of equality, until Canadian industry here has reached a similar stage of development, the United States must dominate the situation. This is true of almost every form of industry. Large aggregations of capital under skilled direction, in the latter, must inevitably dictate and control the industrial interests of the continent, of which its proportion of population is as 11 to 1, and its proportion of available capital and output in many times greater than that.

If we take the fruit and agricultural industry of Washington and Oregon and California as an instance, we find that the industry there is much older, the area under cultivation so much larger, and [illegible]

British Canadian Home Builders with an authorized capital of $500,000 in $1 shares has been organized to fill a much felt want in Victoria.

Companies run on similar lines to those of British Canadian Home Builders have proved most profitable for their shareholders, notably the Los Angeles Investment Co., and "Home Builders" of Los Angeles, Cal. The former having accumulated assets of over $6,300,000 in 15 years, paying 28 per cent dividends, and the latter which started business only three years ago with a capital of $1,250, has assets of over $1,000,000, surplus of $308,000 and paying 17 per cent dividends with their $1 shares selling at $2.50. These figures give you an idea of the possibilities in such a company as British Canadian Home Builders.

SHARES AT PAR

The company is at present offering for public subscription its capital stock at par to furnish as a medium through which the money of the investors may be used in the business of building homes and to derive therefrom its full proportion of profit.

British Canadian Home Builders' shares, fully paid and non-assessable, may be purchased, either for cash, or on installments, viz. 10 per cent cash and 5 per cent per month. For example, $10 cash and $5 monthly purchases 100 shares.

Purchasers on the installment plan will receive dividends in proportion to the amount they have paid at the time same are declared.

NO PROMOTION SHARES

Seldom has the public an opportunity of getting in on the same basis as the promoters, but such is the case in British Canadian Home Builders. The directors and all others connected with the organization of the company have paid one dollar per share for their holdings.

Everybody fares alike who buys British Canadian Home Builders' shares.

PROFIT

British Canadian Home Builders has three main sources of revenue:

Profit from its work of building homes.
Interest on the balance due from the sale of houses.
The profit on the insurance on the houses it builds.

British Canadian Home Builders also derive the benefit of all possible discounts upon current bills, thereby saving their shareholders thousands of dollars each year.

It buys its building material at lowest cash prices.

IS IT SAFE?

British Canadian Home Builders does business on the cash basis, building homes without dangerous speculation in lands and lots, only building houses after they are sold and a payment of at least 10 per cent has been made.

A company that pays cash for everything as British Canadian Home Builders does, and does not contract any heavy debts and obligations without first seeing the money absolutely in sight, cannot be anything else than safe.

VICTORIA IN 1920

No well informed person aiming to be abreast of the times will dispute the statement that Victoria and vicinity will have at least 125,000 people in 1920. This means an increase of 75,000 in population, or 18,750 families needing homes built. British Canadian Home Builders will surely build its share of these.

OPPORTUNITY

Embrace the opportunity of investment in a perfectly safe and profitable enterprise which will help in the upbuilding of Victoria, with its headquarters situate in your own city where values are increasing daily.

British Canadian Home [illegible]

Mr. G. H. Barnard to the Electors

If I am elected as the Conservative member for the City of Victoria on September 21st, the following will be my policy:

1. I pledge myself to make a standing fight on every opportunity which presents itself for the construction of all ships to be stationed on the Pacific Coast at British Columbia shipyards. The fact that higher wages are paid on the Pacific Coast than on the Atlantic will not deter me from making a strong fight against the construction of all the ships for the new Dominion navy on the Atlantic Coast.

2. One of my first efforts shall be to secure a new post office for Victoria. This is a need which has grown out of the rapidly increasing population and the present building is entirely inadequate for the requirements of the city.

3. I shall strongly advocate the payment to post office employees of wages commensurate with the services rendered. The present poor wages paid have led to the local post office being inadequately manned, and the service being consequently inefficient, involving delays in the handling of mail matter which have caused considerable inconvenience to the business community.

4. The need of harbor improvements in keeping with the growth of the port is a matter of vital importance. This port handles the second largest tonnage of any port in the Dominion. I will use my efforts to secure adequate appropriations for harbor improvements which will enable this port to take its proper rank among the ports of the Dominion.

5. Included in the scheme of harbor improvements which I will strongly advocate will be the building of a breakwater off the harbor entrance. I consider that the time has arrived when this scheme has become a port necessity, and even if it should cost the Dominion Government the sum of $2,000,000 or more, I will endeavor by every legitimate means to have it undertaken at the earliest possible moment.

6. In the last Dominion House I outlined my attitude on the need of an efficient fishery protection service. The wholesale poaching carried on by American fishermen during the past few weeks has further proved the utterly inadequate patrol which is maintained on this coast. I shall urge that this fishery protection patrol be increased by one or more fishery protection cruisers of a thoroughly up-to-date character, and of a speed of not less than sixteen knots.

7. I will urge with all my power that the fortifications of Esquimalt shall be restored to and maintained at a strength satisfactory to the Imperial War Office, and will strongly advocate the increase of the present force at Work Point Barracks to at least the point of strength at which it was maintained by the Imperial authorities.

8. The present Ottawa authorities have not lived up to their promises to the men on board the cruisers Rainbow and Niobe in the matter of giving extra pay for extra services. My policy shall be to urge in the new Dominion House that these promises be implemented, and that a similar scale of wages shall be maintained both in the naval and fishery protection services of the Dominion.

9. I am in favor of the absolute enforcement of the Alien Labor Act.

10. I shall oppose with all my power any effort which might be made to do away with the $500 head tax on Chinese coming into Canada. I do not consider that it would be possible for Canada to make a similar arrangement with China as exists with Japan because the government of the former Oriental power is so unstable.

11. As in the past in all matters connected with the welfare of the workingman I will consult with the duly authorised representatives of labor in this city and wherever possible I will urge that the wishes of these, as they affect labor, shall be given the utmost consideration.

12. I shall oppose by every means in my power any relaxation of the Immigration Laws, and will use my utmost endeavors to see that they are carried out in their entirety.

13. In the matter of railway construction in British Columbia I will urge that the Dominion Government shall bonus all legitimate undertakings which make for the benefit and prosperity of the people of this Province and of the Dominion as a whole.

14. My attitude on Reciprocity between Canada and the United States is well known. I shall continue to oppose Canada entering into any trade arrangement with a foreign power which may have a prejudicial influence on the ties which bind this country to the Motherland.

15. Lastly—I am for British connection first, last and all the time. I believe in Canada for the Canadians, and people of the British race, and I believe that the highest destiny which we can imagine for our country is to become the predominant partner in the greatest Empire that the world has ever known.

G. H. BARNARD.

MR. DUNSMUIR IS GIVEN JUDGMENT

Wins Both Suits Brought by Sir William Mackenzie—Litigation Arose Out of Recent Big Colliery Deal

Mr. James Dunsmuir won both actions yesterday brought against R. Dunsmuir Sons Company and The Wellington Colliery Company for something like one million dollars, represented by a dividend of $700,000 declared by the Wellington Company to Mr. Dunsmuir, of which he was virtually sole owner, and certain vessels, ships and tugs and a large quantity of coal kept on stock by the C. P. R. but only paid for as used.

The dispute arose out of the sale of the Wellington Collieries to Mackenzie & Mann, the railway builders, for eleven million dollars. The purchasers expected to have the cash on hand at the time of the sale for working capital, and contended that the ships and tugs as well as the quantity of coal kept by the C. P. R. as mentioned should pass under the terms of purchase. The court was of a different opinion and gave judgment for Mr. Dunsmuir.

The witnesses yesterday in the actions of Canadian Collieries, Ltd. vs. Dunsmuir, were Sir William Mackenzie, Mr. Dunsmuir and Mr. Coulson, who each gave evidence of their understanding of the negotiations connected with the transfer of the properties in question. Mr. Dunsmuir, Mr. Lindsay, Mr. R. T. Elliott and Mr. B. J. Perry, were quite clear that the vendor was to have full possession of the mines, including earnings, until the entire purchase price was paid. The ships, Mr. Dunsmuir was certain, were never intended, nor a certain farm which was claimed. Sir William Mackenzie sought everything to which he was entitled under the agreement.

The arguments of counsel were very short, at the close of which his lordship, the Chief Justice, gave the following judgment:

The Judgment

The court—I do not think that I will gain anything by reserving judgment, in view of the fact that everything has been said, as far as I can see, that can be of any assistance to the court in coming to a conclusion.

With respect to a transaction of this magnitude there are, of course, two ways in which the parties may reduce into writing their intention with respect to the various matters dealt with,—one by a short and compendious agreement such as we have before us, and the other by a much more elaborate agreement, which would have made all necessary provisions about all matters in detail. Of course, with respect to a transaction of this kind it would have almost been impossible, I think, for the parties to have by means of an elaborate detailed agreement everything which it was the intention of the parties to deal with and so necessarily from the character of the transaction I think that they did the best thing that they could have done, and that is to reduce the agreement into a short and compendious scope.

Now that being the case, and there being no itemized list of the properties which were intended to be passed, but only a general description of them, it is, in the nature of things, necessary that parol evidence should be received in order to identify the subject-matter of the agreement, at all events, with respect to the property which it is intended shall be transferred. I say that is in the nature of the thing because if that were not so, and if parties were driven in dealing with transactions of this magnitude to carefully elaborate everything which they intended to pass, it would of course obviously be a serious impediment to the transaction of business. And therefore I think the law is quite reasonable in permitting par-

BILBOA, Spain, Sept. 13.—The strike situation in this city is steadily growing worse. A state of siege has been proclaimed and reinforcements of 5,000 troops are on their way here. Business is at a standstill, stores are closed and the tramways and railways have stopped. Desperate encounters between strikers and troops are of constant occurrence. The soldiers have fired upon the mobs several times, and last night the civil guards wounded eight persons, two fatally. Striking miners at Ovideo dynamited a railroad bridge to prevent the transportation of coal from a colliery where the men refused to strike. Troops have been despatched to that town.

During the past fortnight no fewer than five incendiary fires have occurred at Greenwood.

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto.—I gladly give you my testimonial in favor of your wonderful medicines. Last October I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensation in the lower part of bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas.

After receiving your directions, I followed them closely and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels, and am stronger in every way.

I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby was born, and I recommend it highly to all pregnant women.—Mrs. E. Wardet, 92 Logan Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Another Woman Cured

Maple Creek, Sask.—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I am now in perfect health. I was troubled with pains every month. Are You Thinking of a Home?

If you are, consider the plans first, how many rooms you are going to have and what the general design of your house will be. Planning the house is the first and most important step. The success or failure of one's building operations depends almost entirely upon it. When it is considered that the building of a house represents one of the most important investments and the most serious step in the life of the average man, it will be realized that the house should be built right.

To build right the plans must be right.

To secure right plans, consult an architect who has devoted himself for years to the planning of houses and bungalows of every kind and size, and who thoroughly understands every phase of this intricate work. The exhibition of photographs, sketches and plans in this office is well worth seeing; you can spend a few minutes' time here to excellent advantage. Come!

A Good Baker

What's the use of a range that will not bake properly? That's what you get it for, and yet there are a lot of stoves on the market that won't bake satisfactorily, because the heat does not circulate around the oven, so as to keep it at an even temperature, but this cannot happen on

GURNEY-OXFORD Chancellor Steel —RANGES—

The divided flue sends half the heat over the front of the oven. This means that every corner is available because the oven is heated, back as well as front, evenly.

Then the wonderful Oxford Economizer which will save 20 per cent. on fuel, hold your fire twice as long as before, and ventilate the kitchen. And it's so simple—just the moving of a lever, and the whole stove can be controlled.

Call in and see us next time you are down town. We want to show you these and other exclusive points of the Gurney-Oxford line.

Information has been received by the Agency of Marine at this port from the cable engineer of the United States Cable Steamer "Burnside", that while repairing a submarine cable a black can buoy will be left on the cable end in the following position: William Head Light, Quarantine Station, bearing W. by S. ½ S. AERONAUT'S ESCAPE

Enabled to Descend Only Through Slashing Balloon with Knife—Unconscious in Basket

AUBURN, Maine, Sept. 13.—Half benumbed from a swift flight through rain, hail and cold, and unable to make the outlet valve or rip cord of his balloon work properly, President H. Perry Shearman, of the Williams College Aeronautical society, climbed through the ropes, slashed the silken bag with a knife, and fell back unconscious into the basket. The balloon dropped swiftly to the ground, and tonight Shearman, resting comfortably at a local hospital, was able to tell something of his experience.

It was on a farm on the outskirts of this city that Shearman today ended the longest balloon flight ever made in New England by an unaccompanied aeronaut. The distance from Pittsfield, Mass., where he ascended early in the morning, to this city is approximately 300 miles.

Soon after leaving Pittsfield Shearman's balloon, the Springfield, ran into a heavy rainstorm, which changed to hail. No sooner had he passed through this than the aeronaut encountered a bitterly cold air current. Feeling the effects of the exposure, Shearman several times tried to descend, but was unable to deflate the bag. His strength was nearly exhausted when he finally resorted to his knife.

Drowned Off Alaska Coast

The plant has been closed for the past two or three years on account of the scarcity of timber, but was opened up last spring and was employing a large number of hands. The entire plant was completely burned and the machinery ruined. The loss will run into the thousands.

ties to express their intention in a short and compendious fashion; and so it becomes necessary to allow parol evidence to be given in case of dispute, to identify the subject-matter of their bargain.

Clear Intentions

Dealing with the agreement in question I think that two things stand out very clearly. The first is that there was an intention on the part of one party to sell and of the other party to buy, all the coal in situ and all the mining machinery and appliances that were used in connection with the coal areas for mines which were to be sold by one and purchased by the other. The language reads, "all his properties in British Columbia or in California in anywise relating to coal or coal mines and fire clay and all machinery, articles or things used, or which may be used in connection herewith."

It is necessary, of course, for the court to determine, either at once, or by means of a reference, there being a dispute as to what properties did pass under that description. In the event of a dispute there must, I think, be a reference to find out what properties were of the character described in this sentence.

The second thing that stands out very clearly as well, I think, in the agreement, is that the vendor was to remain in the beneficial enjoyment of the property until he was paid in full. These paragraphs deal with that, viz.:

"5. The vendor will not give up possession of the properties owned by the said companies until paid in full.

"6. When paid in full the vendor will assign the shares and turn over the properties of the said companies to the purchaser his executors, administrators and assigns.

"7. The vendor will pay all expenses of operation and up-keep up to the day of giving up possession, and shall be entitled to retain for his own use all the earnings of the properties up to the day of giving up possession.

"8. The shares and properties will be assigned and turned over free from all liabilities.

"9. The properties of the two companies will be kept intact by the vendor during the continuance of this option subject only to shipment of coal in the ordinary course of business."

Now those five clauses seem to me to make it very clear that if there was anything clearly intended by both parties and agreed to by both parties it was that until the purchasers paid the full amount which the agreement called upon them to pay, that the vendor was to remain in the absolute beneficial enjoyment of the property, subject only to its limitations, that he was not either to alienate or encumber the properties, but was to hand them over on the full payment of the money, unincumbered and intact so far as alienation is concerned.

Dispute Over Coal Areas.

With respect, then, to the properties which have passed, there being apparently a dispute as to some of the coal areas that have not yet been transferred, I think that it is necessary to have a reference, if the parties are unable to agree, to find out what properties relating to coal mines and fire clay have not yet been transferred.

With respect to ships, I find no mention of ships in the agreement; and unless there are vessels, such as barges or scows, which can fairly be characterized as machinery, articles or things which may be used in connection with the coal mine or coal mines, I do not think that those were intended to pass by the agreement. It will, however, be necessary, I suppose, to have a reference to find out which vessels or barges or scows, if any, were ordinarily used in connection with any of these mines. Such vessels or scows or barges would, I take it, pass under this agreement. But no vessel which was ordinarily used in connection with the business of the mine, would, I take it, have passed under this clause.

Question of Farm.

With respect to the farm, all I can say about it on the evidence, is that that farm is vested in the vendor personally, that accordingly to him, sales were made of the proceeds of the farm to the Wellington Colliery company in the usual course of business, that the employees of that farm were not paid by the colliery company, but by himself; and so far as I can say, there is nothing proved to me that that farm could be said to be in any way appurtenant to the mine. I therefore think that the farm belongs to the defendant.

With respect to the question of the earnings, I take it that the ordinary meaning of the word "earnings" is income derived from the carrying on of the business; which income of course may be in the nature of cash or of either written or unwritten money obligations. Now the agreement expressly says that the vendor is to retain for his own use all earnings of properties up to the day of giving up possession. He is not, I think, as urged by Mr. Davis, entitled only to the earnings up to the third of January, 1910, the date of the agreement. The language in the agreement is express; it says that he is entitled to retain all the earnings up to the day of giving up possession. It is only another way of saying, as I have already said, that he is entitled to the full beneficial enjoyment of the property untill the last cent is paid. According to his evidence, and the evidence of Mr. Lindsay, the $700,000 which he withdrew arose wholly, at all events practically wholly, from the sales of the coal which had been mined. There was no evidence which I recollect which would suggest that any portion of this money, at all events any portion of the money worth considering—because I think Mr. Davis admitted that there might be an inconsiderable portion arising from some other source—for practical purposes there was no evidence which I recollect tending in any way to rebut the statement of the defendant that this money arose practically wholly out of the sales of the coal. From that point of view I think they were clearly earnings. And to my mind it makes no difference whether he went through the form of declaring a dividend to possess himself of this money or whether he did not. I therefore think it is not necessary to have any reference with respect to the question of the earnings, at all events that $700,000, unless Mr. Davis is of opinion on reflection that there is a considerable portion of this money arising from some other source than the sales of coal.

Coal and Coke

Now with respect to the coal and the coke, I had some little doubt as to the true view to take of the rights arising with respect to these coal heaps. But the best conclusion I can come to is, with respect to the one that has been sold to the Canadian Pacific railway, I think under the terms of the agreement which has been produced here that this coal [illegible] belonged to the Canadian [illegible] has so belonged since the time of its delivery; that in other words there is only now a debt due with respect to that coal to the Wellington Colliery company. And if that is so, then the moneys arising from that sale must clearly be earnings. With respect, however, to the other coal which has not been sold, and the coke, I do not think that the ordinary meaning of the word "earnings" would be wide enough to sweep that coal and coke within the purview of the expression. As I say, I think the term "earnings" means income derived from the carrying on of the business, which income may be in the shape of cash or written or unwritten money obligations. The coal and the coke, other than the coal that has been delivered to the C. P. R. has never been sold or agreed to be sold; and therefore I do not think it has become converted into earnings. I therefore think that those heaps of [illegible] coke, other than [illegible] the Canadian Pacific [illegible] the purchasers [illegible]

I don't [illegible] else.

Mr. [illegible]

[illegible]

Are You One of The Men Who Will Supply the Increased Demand for Coal?

The rapidity and ease with which some people make money, more than startles their friends, who may be plugging along on a good living basis, with a small amount each month to the good for a rainy day.

This surplus cash is usually lodged in the savings banks, at three, four or five per cent per annum, which takes from 15 to 20 years—the great portion of a lifetime—for capital to double.

For those not desirous of speculating in real estate, and having $10 in cash, no proposition presents more substantial security or more promising profits than British Columbia coal—that is, of course, provided that the coal properties have excellent transportation facilities, and are close to a market.

You are offered an opportunity to join with a number of Vancouver and British Columbia citizens to supply coal to the markets on the Pacific Coast, direct from the mines on Graham Island, immediately opposite Prince Rupert City, a distance of 72 miles.

Captain Wilbur Johnston, as Trustee, is now placing a limited block of stock in The American-Canadian Coal Co., Ltd., upon the market at 20c per share.

The American-Canadian Coal Co., Ltd., is a limited liability corporation.

The shares issued at 20c have a par value of $1.00.

When you have paid the Trustee 20c for each share applied for to him, there is nothing more to be paid—no calls or assessments.

The stock issued is fully paid up.

The operations of The American-Canadian Coal Co., Ltd., at the north end of Graham Island, near Masset Inlet, enjoying such a large area of coal land, opposite Prince Rupert, insures the shareholders, on the completion of a reasonable amount of development work, a property which will advance rapidly in value.

About the Coal

Just think of it! Along the foreshore of the property of The American-Canadian Coal Company, coal in vast quantities, representing hundreds of tons, appears in the form of small islands of solid coal, running almost as far as the eye can reach.

At the water's edge there is a veritable mount of coal.

The photographic reproductions of these vast coal croppings are now on exhibition at the office of Capt. Wilbur Johnston, the Trustee, and prove conclusively the existence of coal in the property.

The two main seams on the shore measure respectively 12 and 6 feet, the tonnage of which on a most conservative basis of calculation, is 27,000,000 of tons, which, even if netting at a minimum of $1.00 per ton to the operators, represents an enormous dividend to the shareholders.

Today, good workable coal lands are at a premium, that is, properties which are feasible for immediate operation, which requires the property to be on a railway or fronting on salt water.

Prominently situated and occupying the key position, in known coal fields of marked coal area on Graham Island, is the property owned by The American-Canadian Coal Co., which corporation received its charter from the government at Victoria—it is a British charter.

It is one of the few coal companies in the western portion of Canada that owns outright its surface rights.

The patent from the government carries timber and other minerals besides coal.

The surface represents many hundreds of acres of the very finest farming lands.

The above, coupled with the fact that it fronts on deep water, offering water transportation to Prince Rupert and other points on the Pacific Coast, presents an unequalled proposition.

The limited block of stock now upon the market, available at 20c per share, is being subscribed for rapidly.

This means that the next issue of stock by the Trustee will be placed upon the market at a greatly advanced price per share.

You must hurry if you desire to avail yourself of this ground floor opportunity.

The terms are 10c per share with the application, balance in two equal monthly payments.

The office of the trustee, Capt. Wilbur, Johnson, is situated at 604 Broughton St., Victoria, B. C. and is open until 9:00 p. m.

COWAN'S PERFECTION COCOA

Fort George

Will be one of Canada's largest cities. Because it is the geographical and strategic commercial centre of British Columbia.

The junction of 1,000 miles of navigable waterways.

So situated that all railroads building through Central British Columbia—north, south, east or west—must build to Fort George following the waterways.

Fort George is on the line of eleven railroads chatered—some building.

British Columbia is Canada's largest and richest province.

The best part of British Columbia is tributary to Fort George.

When comparing Fort George to any prairie city it is only necessary to point out that Fort George has all resources of any of the prairie cities in the way of agricultural possibilities of the country tributary, but in addition it has an immense timber area, assuring the development of the lumber industry.

Coal has been discovered within ten miles of Fort George and it is the supply point for the great Cariboo gold district which has produced one hundred million dollars to date.

A 75,000 Horsepower water-power is within sixteen miles, thus insuring cheap power for manufacturing purposes.

No city in Western Canada can class with Fort George in regard to richness and extent of natural tributary resources.

In making your investments don't overlook the fact that all the new cities cannot be Winnipegs or Vancouvers.

There will be a repetition of Winnipeg's growth—of Vancouver's financial triumphs.

In casting around for the next young giant among cities you cannot get by Fort George.

The more you compare Fort George with other cities—made and in the making—the more you will be convinced of Fort George's future greatness.

The "big" money is being made by those who can get in at the beginning of a big city.

AMUSEMENTS

Souza and His Band—The tour of the world whihc Souza and his band began in August, 1910, will be almost completed when the distinguished leader and his admirable organization arrive at Victoria. The record made by the Sousa band during this tour is a remarkable one. Its achievements all testify to an unflagging devotion to his work, a comprehensive knowledge of his art, a keen appreciation of public taste, a catholicity of taste in matters musical, exceptional capacity as a disciplinarian and the other characteristics that go to make of John Philip Sousa a successful man of affairs as well as an artist of unusual merit and distinction. Sousa and his band will be heard here at the Victoria theatre on Wednesday, September 20.

Crystal Theatre—"The Great Secret," an Edison drama is a story of a young lady who is caught making a sketch and taking a photograph of the French fortifications. She gets away and three army officers are sent to find her. They take passage on the same steamer, but the young lady is under an assumed name. One of the officers falls in love with her and when by accident her identity becomes known it is a case of love or duty of which he selects the latter. On being apprehended it turns out she was an agent of some corset manufactury and had been drawing sketches of different models inside the fortifications, and so all ends well. It is an especially well acted and well staged picture, the steamer scenes being good. "Willie," the Selig comedy, is laughed at when he asks papa to marry his daughter and tells him to go west and make something out of himself and then come back to him. Willie takes him at his word and the picture shows us the trials and tribulations he has to contend with and the fun the boys "out west" have at his expense. He makes good, however, and returns and get the girl. The round-up, showing thousands of head of cattle, is a beautiful scene. "Bessie's Ride" is one in which she saved her lover's life. "Father and Son" is a Pathe drama with an excellent moral. Only one more week left to get in on the guessing contest.

THE SONG OF THE SONS

One from the ends of the earth—gifts at an open door—
Treason has much, but we, Mother, thy sons have more!
From the whine of a dying man, from the snarl of a wolf-pack freed,
Turn for the world is thine. Mother be proud of thy seed!
Count, are we feeble or few? Hear, is our speech so rude?
Look, are we poor in the land? Judged are we men of the blood?
Those that have stayed at thy knees, Mother, go call them in—
We that were bred overseas wait and would speak with our kin.
Not in the dark do we fight—haggle and flout and gibe:
Selling our love for a price, loaning our hearts for a bribe.
Gifts have we only today—Love without promise or fee—
Hear, for thy children speak, from the uttermost parts of the sea.

TOFIELD

Leading Junction Point on the Main Line of the Grand Trunk Pacific
At the Head of the
Tofield-Calgary Branch
The Longest and Most Important Branch of the Grand Trunk Pacific System

RAPID GROWTH OF TOFIELD

TOFIELD is situated in Eastern Central Alberta, 41 miles east of Edmonton. It is on the Main Line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and at the Junction between the Main Line and the Tofield-Calgary Branch, the longest and most important branch of the G. T. P. System west of Winnipeg, and the ONLY branch running south from the Main Line in Alberta.

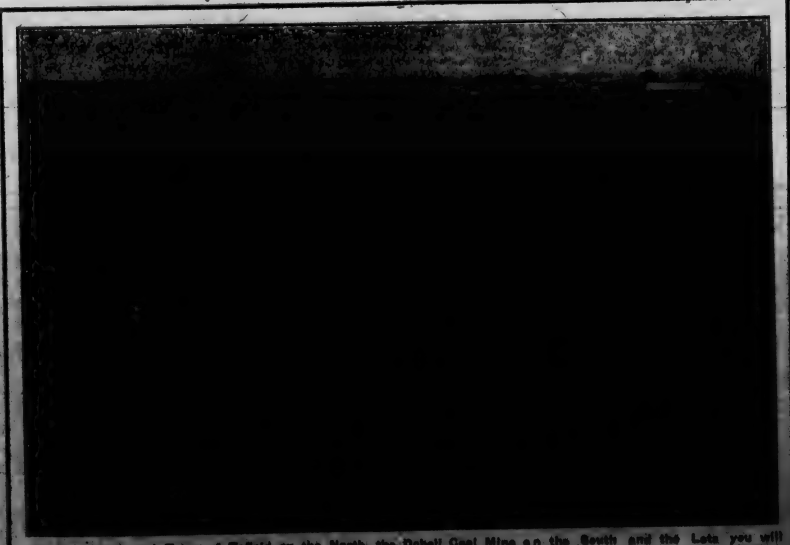

TOFIELD is the Heart of the Trade Centre of the celebrated Beaver Lake District, one of the oldest and one of the best mixed farming districts in Western Canada. This district was first settled nearly a quarter of a century ago and has been famous ever since for its prosperous farmers, who prospered in spite of the fact that until two years ago they had to haul their products 25 to 30 miles by wagon to reach a railroad.

The Main Line of the G. T. P. reached Tofield late in 1909, when the town had a population of from 200 to 300. The population jumped to 600 to 700 in 1910, and it is expected that before the close of the present year it will have at least doubled as a result of the development of the coal mining and manufacturing industries.

TOFIELD is today the liveliest town on the G. T. P. between Winnipeg and Edmonton, and is making more rapid and substantial progress than any other town of its population. Since the arrival of the railroad it has had but one summer in which to develop and is now entering upon its second summer with extensive plans for private and public improvement. These improvements include the installation of new machinery in the coal mines and a large increase in their capacity; the sinking of a town well to a depth of 1,000 to 2,000 feet for the purpose of providing an adequate supply of water for fire protection, and developing the Natural Gas Resources; the construction of a brick manufacturing plant, and an electric light and power plant; the grading of additional streets and laying of additional walks; the improvement of the Exhibition Grounds, and the building of a large number of business blocks and residences. This will be by far the busiest year in Tofield's brief history, the year of greatest advance in real estate values, and the year of greatest opportunities for profit on realty investments.

TOFIELD

The opportunity to buy lots in the heart of a new town, which has every indication of becoming a big city, comes but once in a lifetime. Had you been one of the early buyers in Victoria, Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton or Saskatoon, not of subdivisions or additions a long distance out, and had held for a few years you would be independently rich today. If you missed it then, do not let Tofield pass.

ANGLICAN SYNOD

"Ne Temere" Decree and Book of Common Prayer are Discussed—New Ecclesiastical Provinces

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 12.—The "ne temere decree" occupied the attention of the Anglican synod yesterday. Hon. S. H. Blake, who moved the original motion to have the matter referred to a committee of the two houses, had it passed.

Canon Kittson of Ottawa said that he had great respect for the Roman Catholic church and people, for he had been brought up in a Roman Catholic environment, had been baptised by a Roman Catholic and in later years he had married a Protestant. According to the attitude of the Roman Catholic church, this marriage could be annulled and his children declared illegitimate.

Lawrence Baldwin of Toronto was the only member supporting the decree and his address met with strong dissent.

The synod yesterday passed a recommendation of the committee on the adoption of the book of Common Prayer. By so doing the first step was taken in remodelling the prayer book to meet the views of the Canadian church and the requirements of the Canadian associations, something that one wing of the church has been agitating for in many synods for years. The recommendation was not passed without bitter opposition, however. The evening session was devoted to the business end of the new prayer book and finally it was adopted that the Cambridge Press would have copies of the new amended prayer book ready for the next general synod.

The synod has separated the dioceses in Ontario from the ecclesiastical province of Canada and formed them into an ecclesiastical province. It also consented to the construction of an ecclesiastical province of British Columbia. Each province will have as a presiding officer a metropolitan with the title of archbishop.

Alleged Horse Thief.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 13.—Sam Gondrey, who is said to have been wanted for years by the Montana authorities on charges of horse-stealing, was arrested by the Northwest mounted police near Calgary last night, after a desperate fight. Gondrey is alleged to have been the terror of stockmen on both sides of the border for a long time.

Lumbermen Organizing

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 13.—First steps toward the closer linking of the lumber interests of Oregon and Washington were taken tonight at a private dinner, where Henry J. Pierce, of Spokane, presented his proposal for the merger into one company of the lumber mills of the two states, to representatives of western Oregon sawmill companies. Neither Mr. Pierce nor any others of those present would discuss the definite results of the conference, which follows closely upon that of the western Washington lumbermen at Aberdeen last week.

The body of Mrs. P. E. Stevenson, wife of a well-known resident, has been found floating in Chemainus harbor. Mrs. Stevenson had been in ill-health of late, and it is believed committed suicide while temporarily deranged.

PRICES SHOW HEAVY DECLINES

Acute Weakness Develops in Stock Market, with Slight Rally at Close—Unfavorable Dividend Rumors

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Acute weakness once more developed in the stock market today. The meagre gains of yesterday were swept away before an attack which, as the session progressed, became increasingly severe and inflicted some heavy losses.

Union Pacific's decline at the low price of the day was within a fraction of 4 points, one of the most severe drops of this stock during the summer. Missouri Pacific and New Haven lost the same amount, as both of those stocks, as well as New York Central sold at their lowest prices since 1908. A number of prominent issues, including Reading, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, and Amalgamated Copper lost 2 points or more. The market rallied before the close, under the influence of short covering, regaining part of the day's losses.

The depression in several railroad stocks was attributed to some extent to doubt whether the dividend rates would be maintained. This was especially true of New Haven, which also was affected by the unfavourable annual report of the Boston and Maine.

News from the steel industry was another discouraging factor. Price cutting of steel has become widespread, although in most cases prices have not fallen far below the low levels reached early in the year.

Europe played less of a part in today's market. Transactions for European account were estimated at 12,000 shares, about evenly divided between purchases and sales.

The bond market was steady. Total sales (par value) $2,107,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Dynamite Suspect

LARIMORE, N. D., Sept. 13.—Stephen K. Smith was arrested here on suspicion of being one of the men wanted in connection with the alleged dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building. Baby's Terrible Eczema

Hands Tied to Prevent Scratching.

Five Doctors Failed to Relieve, but Zam-Buk Worked a Cure.

Mrs. Chas. Levere, of Prescott, North Channel, Ont., tells how Zam-Buk cured her baby. She says: "My baby's head and face was one complete mass of sores. The itching and irritation were fearful, and the little one's plight was so serious that at one time we feared her ears would be eaten off by the disease.

"We had to keep her hands tied for days to prevent her rubbing and scratching the sores. Doctor after doctor treated her in vain, until we had had five doctors. They all agreed it was a frightful case of eczema, but none of them did any permanent good.

"As a last resource we were advised to try Zam-Buk. The first box did so much good that we felt sure we were at last working in the right direction. We persevered with the treatment until we had used thirteen boxes, and at the end of that time I am glad to say Zam-Buk had effected a complete cure."

For eczema, eruptions, rashes, tetter, itch, ringworm and similar skin diseases, Zam-Buk is without equal. It also cures cuts, burns, scalds, piles, abscesses, chronic sores, blood poisoning, etc. All druggists and stores at 50 cents a box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Refuse imitations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

those states will control the entire fruit trade—canned and preserved—from Victoria to Winnipeg. So far as Ontario is concerned the loss of the market in canned fruit and vegetables and evaporated fruits and vegetables will be very serious. In this class of goods Ontario cannot compete with the Pacific coast states, where fruit and vegetables are so much larger and where the yield per acre is so enormous.

I shall endeavor in future issues, with your permission, to present other aspects of the question and to show how other interests are affected.

R. E. GOSNELL.

A Complaint.

Sir,—In the interests of justice and sport I crave some of your valuable space, in an endeavor to explain the most regrettable and unpleasant incident that I was the instigator of at the Horse Show on Thursday evening. It will be remembered that I forcibly protested against the style of fence being used in a certain class, because those fences did not conform to the conditions laid down for the class in the premium list. To make my position clear, I enclose copy of the conditions as given in the premium list:

"Hunter Classes—All riders in hunting and jumping classes to be neatly and suitably dressed. Boys under sixteen years of age will not be allowed to ride in the hunter and jumping classes. To be ridden over four successive hurdles, three feet of timber, with twelve inches of brush on top. A steady hunting pace to be maintained.

"Ladies' Hunters—Ladies' hunters up to carrying 150 lbs. Conformation and quality to count 50 per cent; performance over fences 50 per cent. Manners absolutely essential in this class. Ladies to ride."

Anyone present on Thursday will have noticed that the fences then put up were not in accordance with those specified in the premium list and my contention is that no matter what the form of contest is, it is the universal custom that the rules and regulations governing that contest at the time of entry are never changed at the time the contest takes place. Were it otherwise, competition of every kind must naturally cease.

The display of hostile feeling against my action on Thursday, I feel, must have been made in ignorance of the facts. Many present on reference to their programmes doubtless saw the conditions governing the class in question, stipulated nothing about the form of fence to be used, and they were doubtless under the impression that the conditions as there outlined were the full conditions of the class, which they were not. If they had been and I had then made a protest, I should certainly have expected to have been called a "kicker," and one afraid to take his medicine.

Horse showing has got beyond the point of being done just for fun; it is a matter of strict business to many, and the importance of the jumping contest is so great, that in the premium list of the International Show, a cut is given of every fence to be used, and the exact measurements to inches of every dimension of the fence are stated so that there can be no possible misunderstanding when any competition takes place. What would be the consequences should all the foreign entries find on arrival at Olympia that the style of fence they had entered to jump over had been changed? A Britisher's name for fair play would be on the wane.

It is not necessary for a small show like ours to have the jumps so fully described as for the International, but it is just as necessary to have the jumps conform to what dimensions are given in the premium list. I may say my action has already borne good fruit, as the fences used on Friday evening were in strict accordance with the conditions as given in the premium list, and furthermore when it was a question of whether a fence was such as it should be or not, the wish of the riders was taken and the decision of the majority, as had been agreed upon, settled the question. Thus the possibility of any further misunderstanding was eliminated, and I fully anticipate the question will never arise at any of our future shows. In concluding and thanking you for the space granted I might remark that when I made the protest I was only the spokesman of many good and true sportsmen, who are as anxious as myself for the continued prosperity of our local show.

W. H. B. MEDD.

Be True to Motherland.

Sir:—Why does Canada want to alter the course she has been steering when the captains say "All's well!" to go out on an unknown course they call reciprocity, which may be all right or may be all wrong; in my mind in all probability it would be the latter. Have you not heard in days gone by, "Ah, he did not know when he was well off." We know Canada now is more prosperous than she has ever been in her history; so why try a change when we are doing so well? Besides, if that change is necessary, why not let Great Britain have a look in? Don't forget, cheapness is not always the best for the working man. Take for illustration, England, with the cheapest market in the world. Are the workers there better off than here? I, who have travelled the old country for fifteen years say no; decidedly not. It stands to reason, if you buy other nations' manufactured goods every article you so buy means less work for the producer in your own country, which in the end must affect the wage question by cutting down expenses, including wages, to compete. Take my advice, don't change, when you are doing well. America only wants reciprocity for what she can get out of you, not for what she can give you. Oh, no; Americans are too cute to give much away. What they are after is something they haven't got, and what I say is, if they must have it, let them pay for it. If they have squandered their own resources and are now looking for some one to give unto them, all I can say is, Canada cannot afford as yet to give anything away, but to just go right on looking after herself, and if she has anything to spare, give it to the old mother country at home, where your old fathers came from and worked in the past like slaves for Canada and made her stand today on the high pedestal she does.
